CHANGES

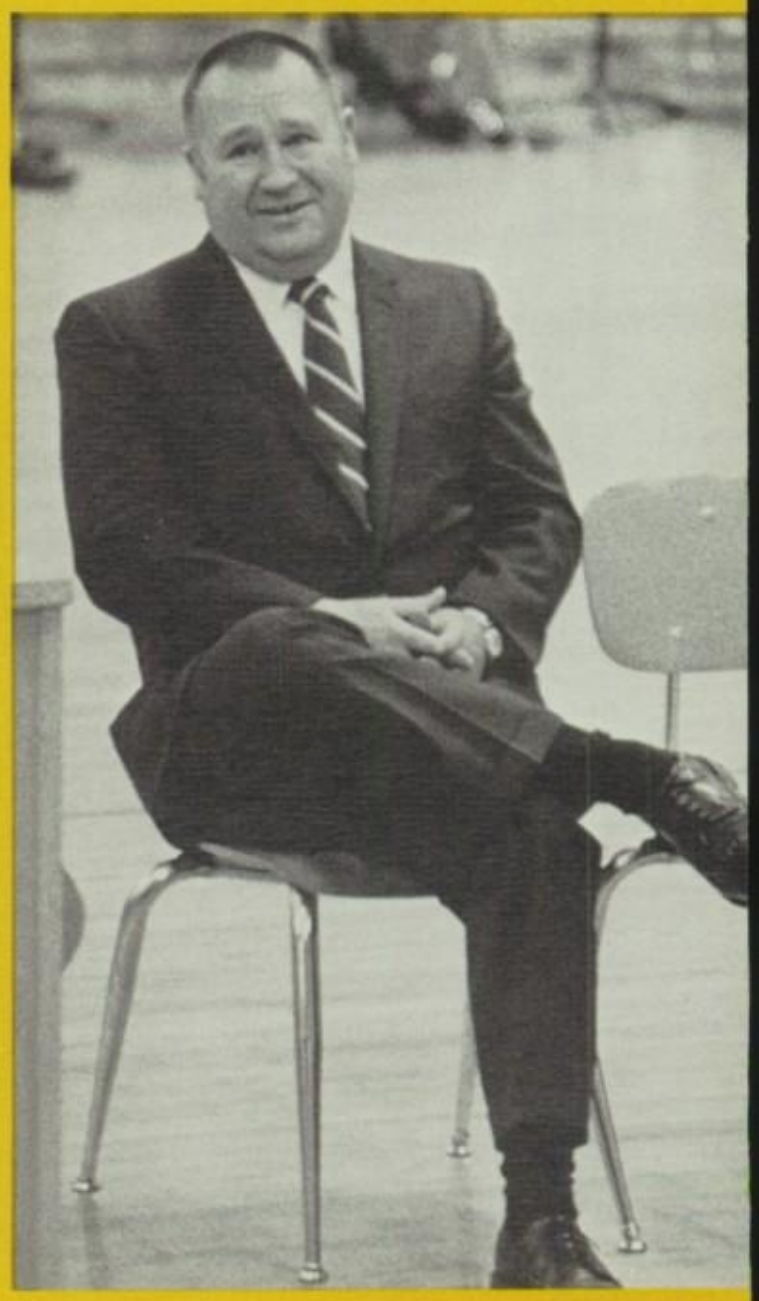
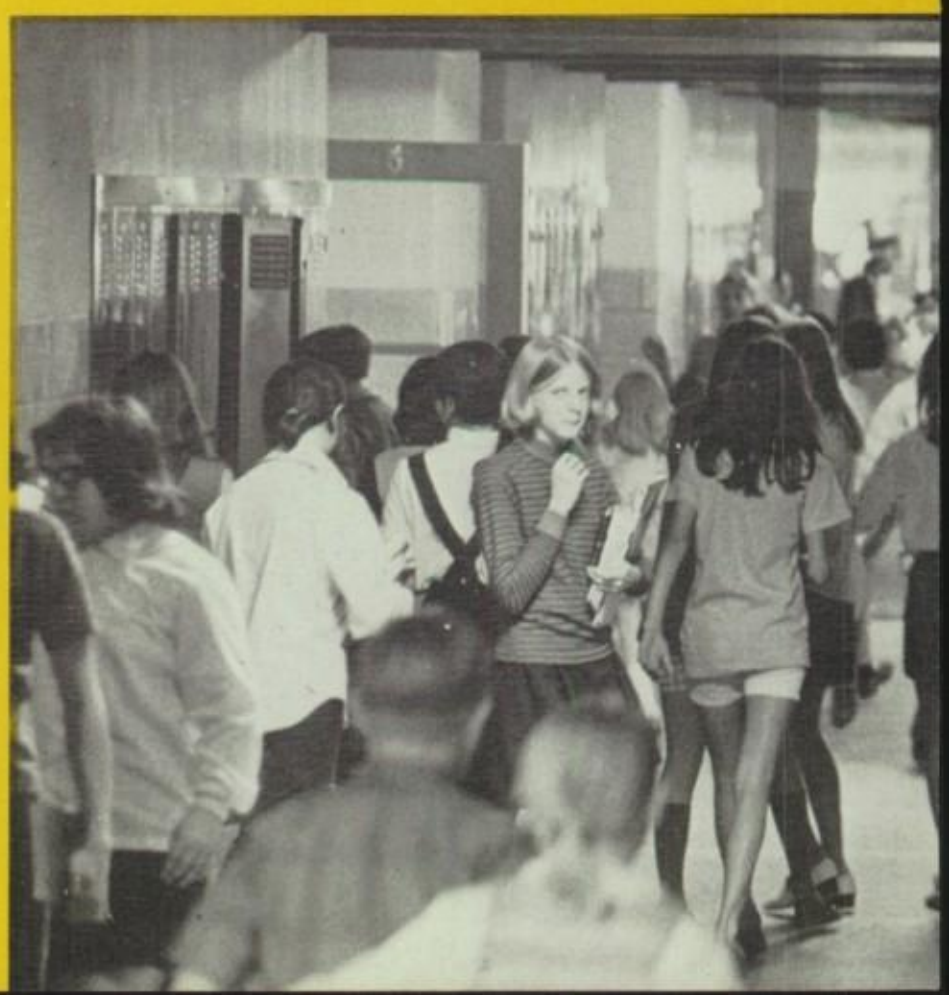
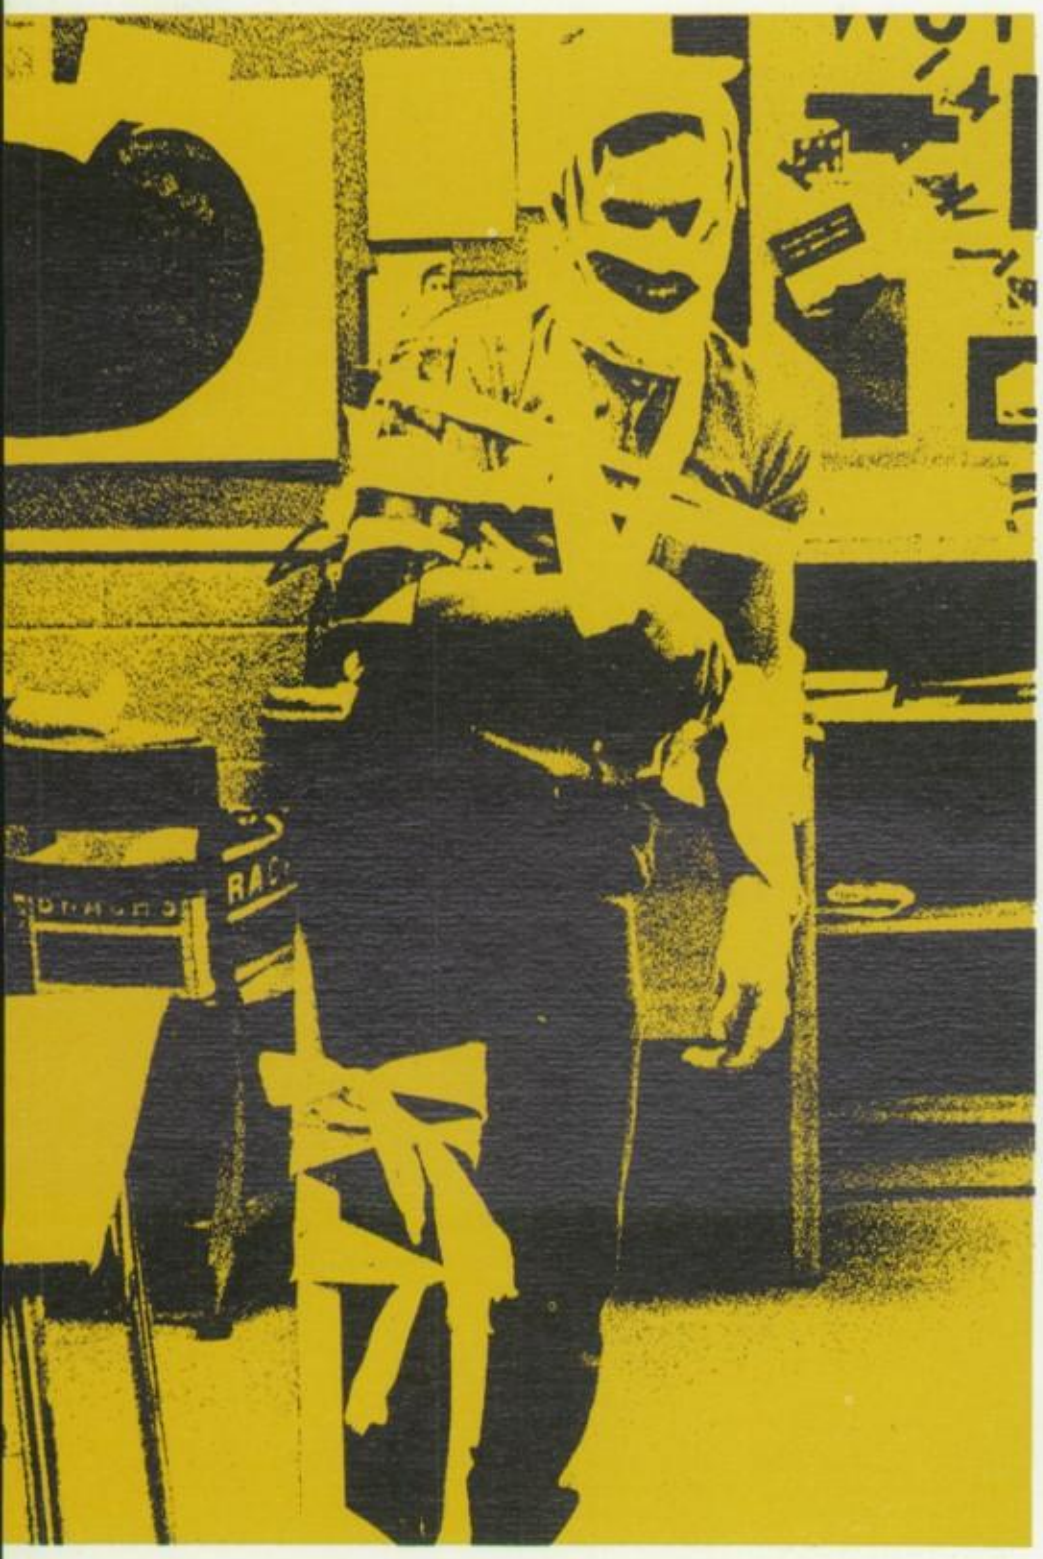
— — new surrounds for some, a familiar building with strange faces for others. Diversified ideas born during the summer months blossom forth, breaking up old relationships and creating new ones. The freshman stands alone . . .

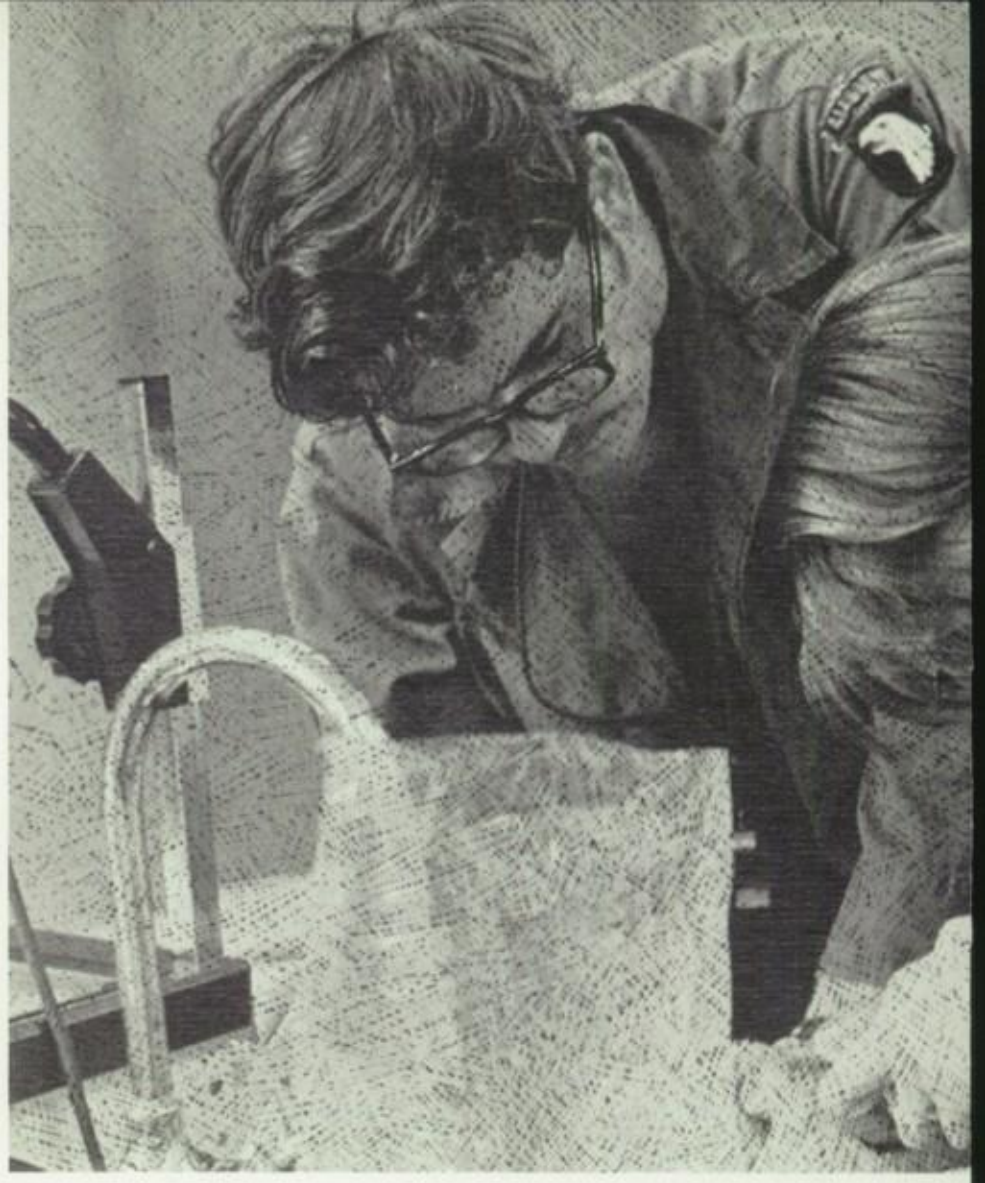


Changes . . . from an empty hall to a bustling collage of people. He looks around at the many strange faces and thinks back on the crowded security of his previous surroundings. He is alone and confused. Not sure of where he fits in, he searches for his identity, finding that he may have to ask directions along the way. He wonders what it is like to be a senior.

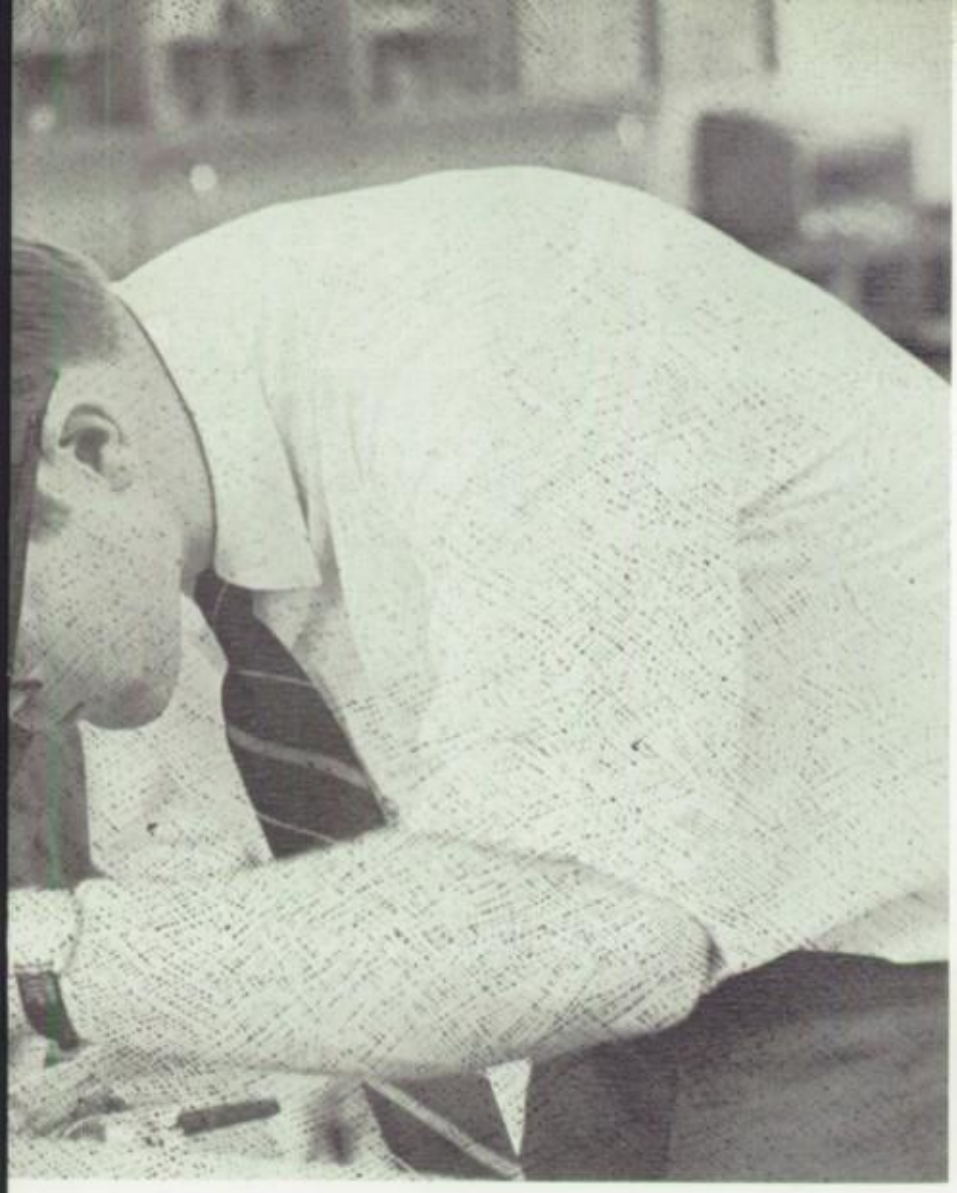


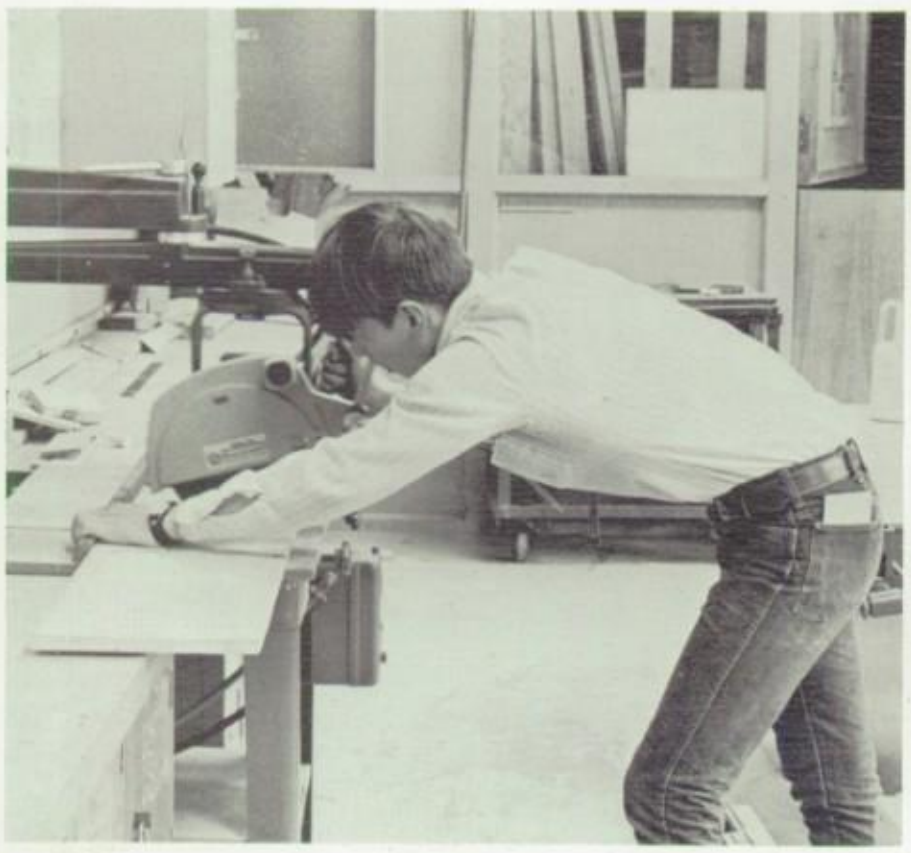
The bewilderment is evident and even the freshman now feels that he is more secure than he thought—secure in the knowledge that someone is more mixed up than he. The humor of the episode adds a certain brightness to his day and he finds himself gradually warming to the stiuation in which he is involved.

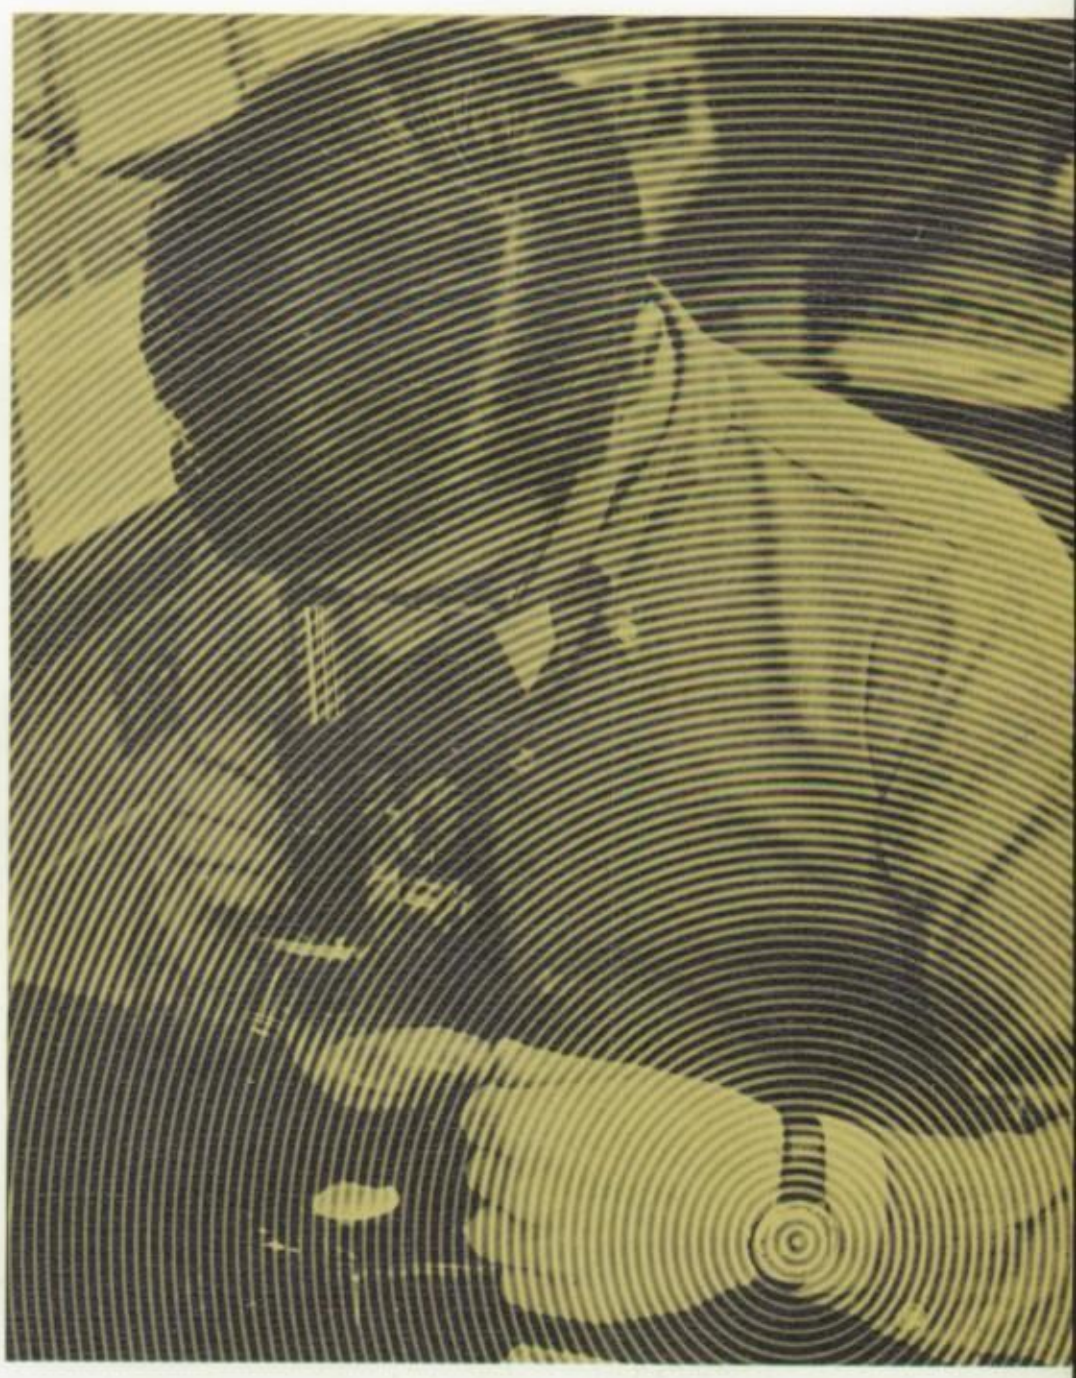




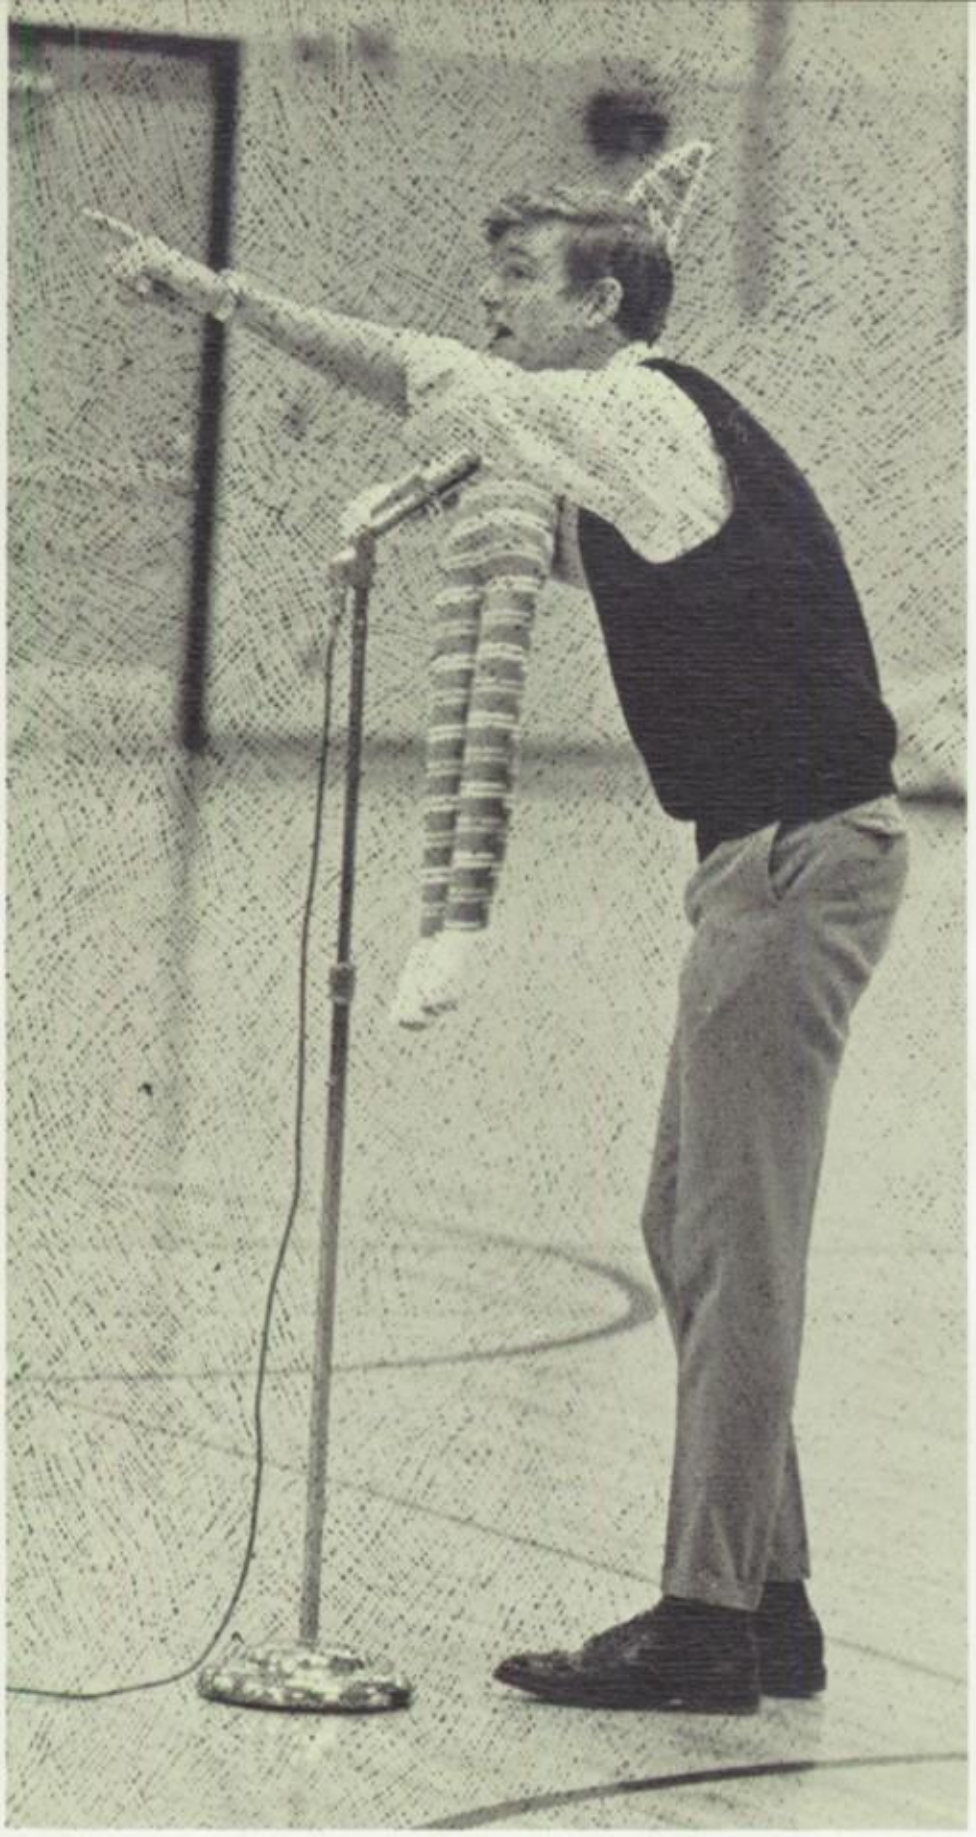
He reaches out, accepting others. His own feelings and emotions begin to emerge and he struggles to express himself and to cope with these expressions.

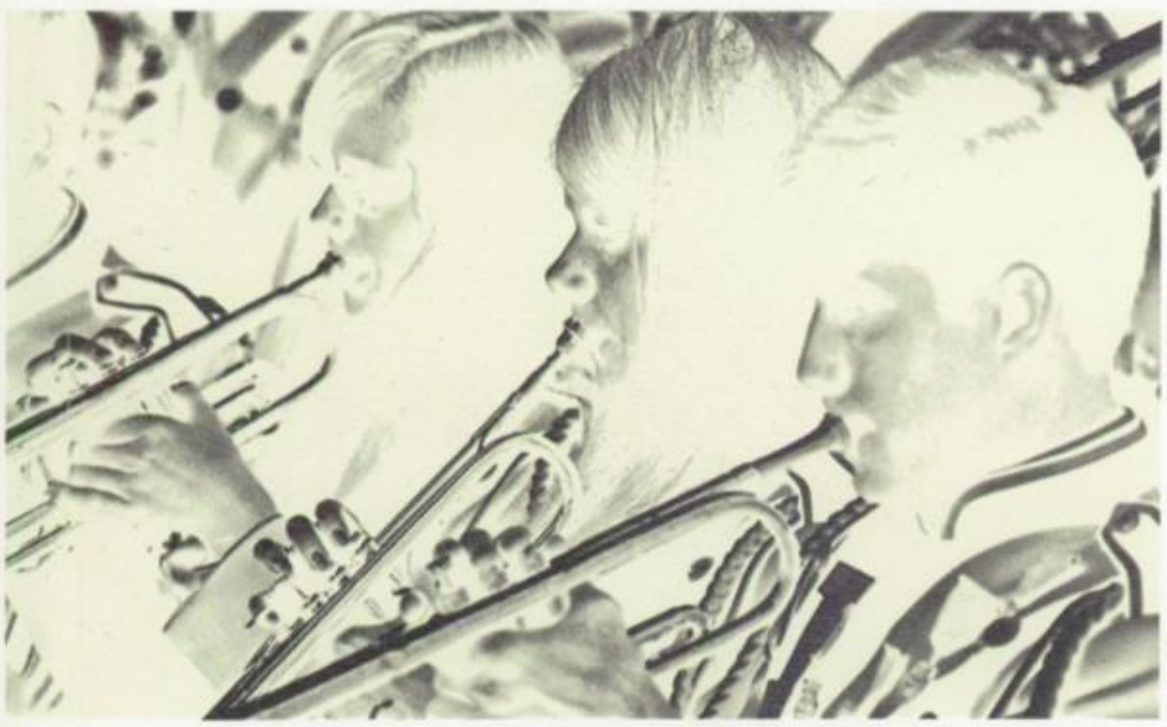




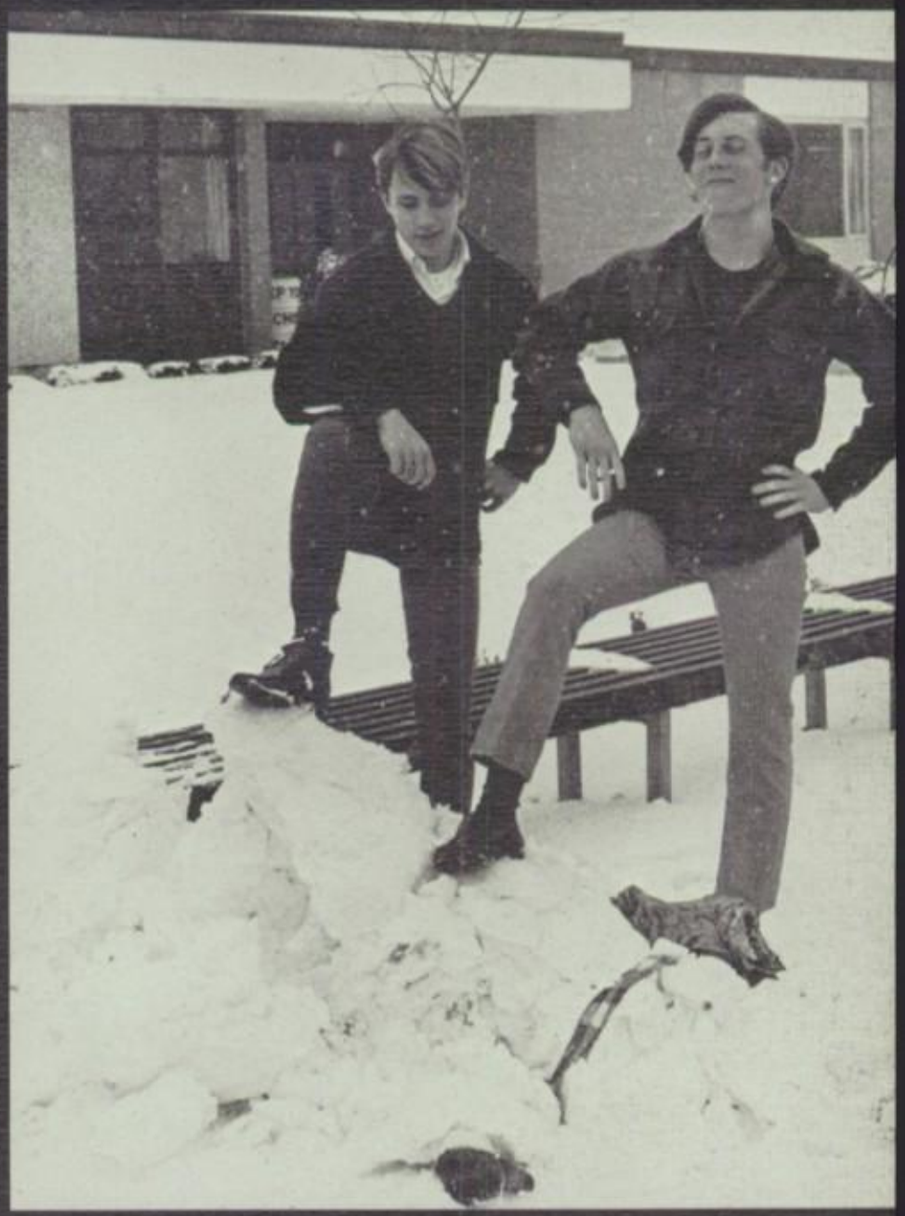


Through developing artistic and musical talent, dramatics and speaking abilities, or techniques of industrial arts, he begins to emerge as an individual.

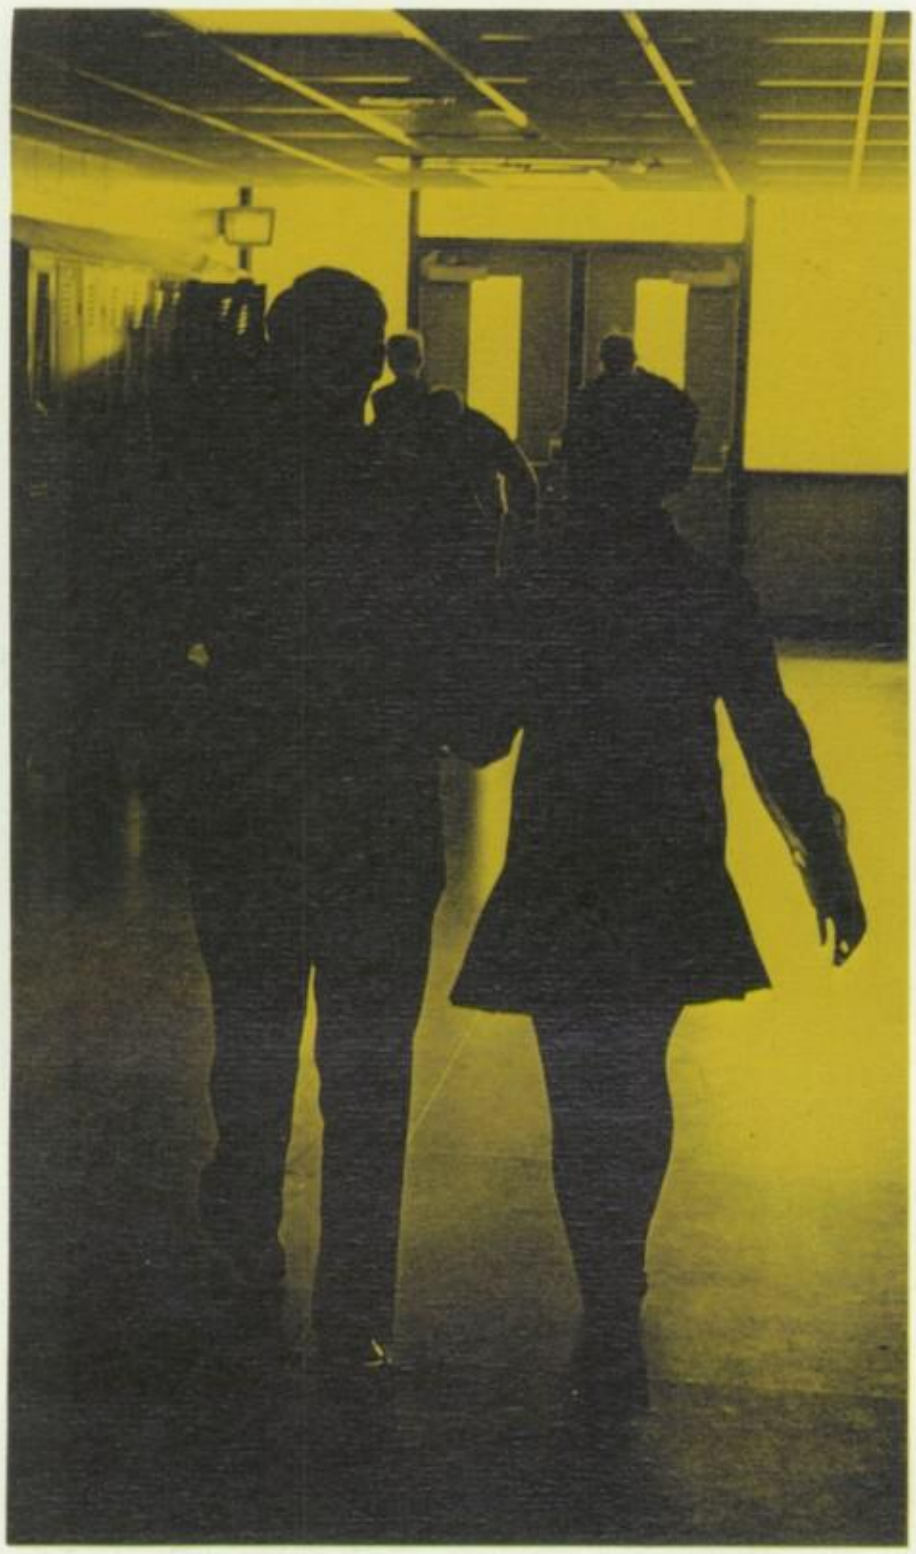


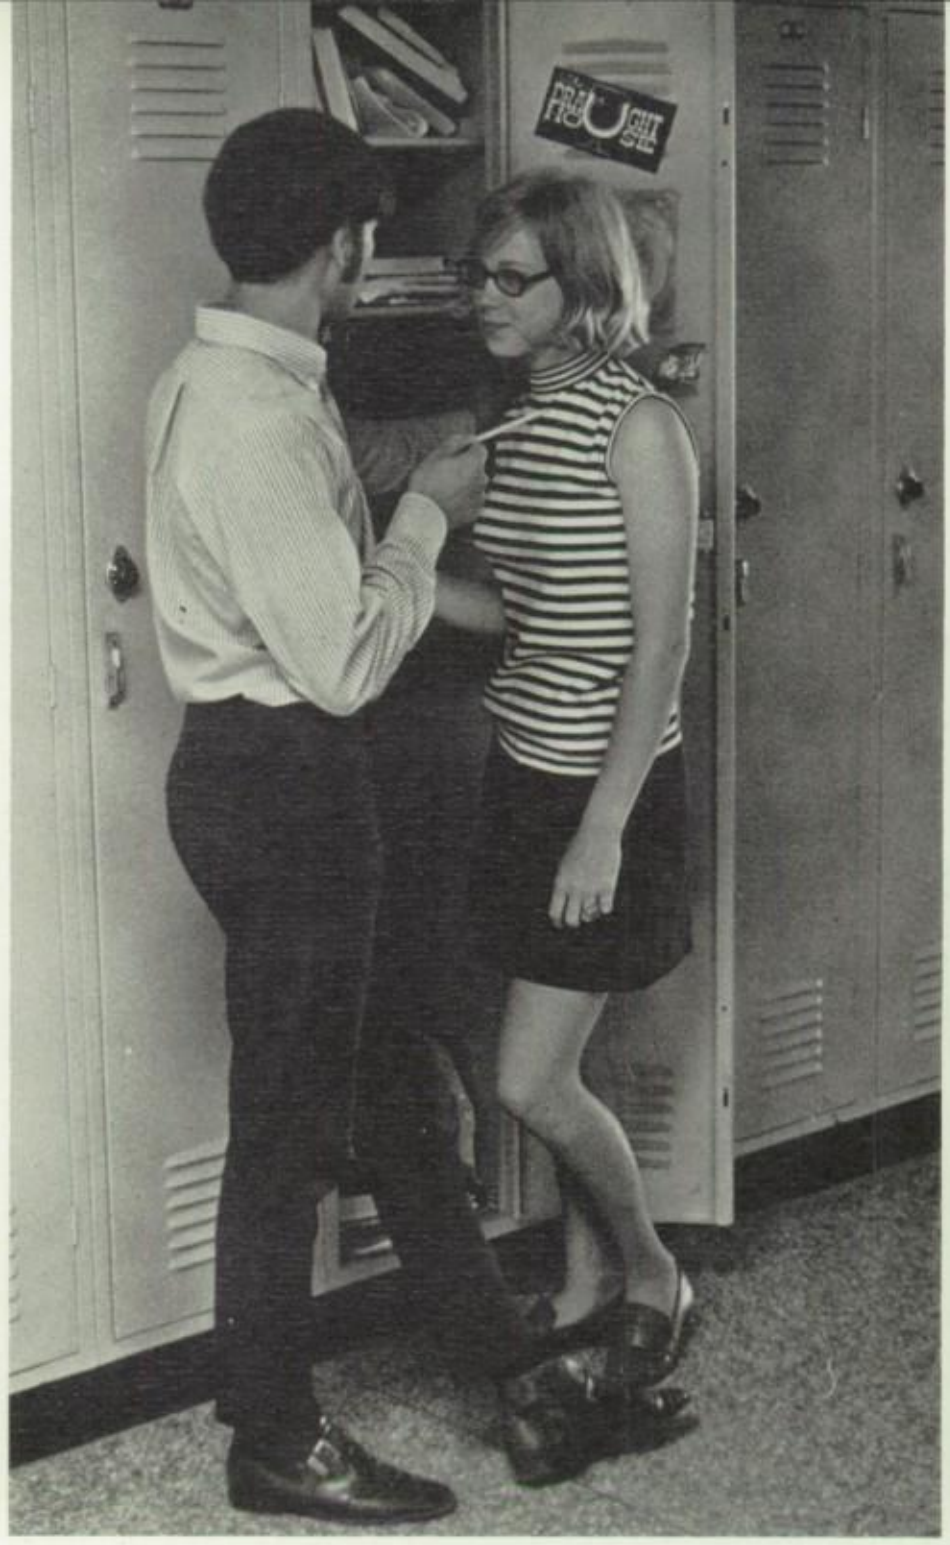


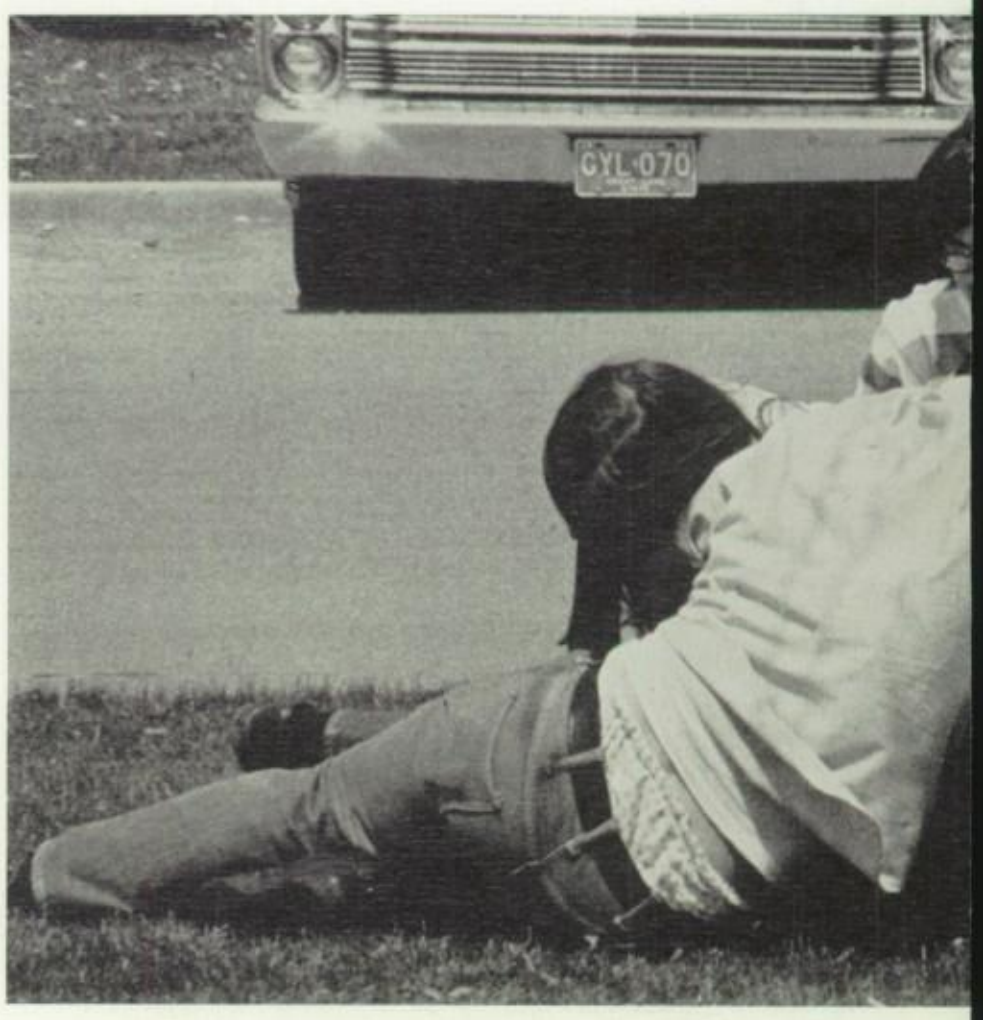
He can add his voice or his strength and his talent to the support of the team. From this experience, he discovers the beauty of the motion . . .



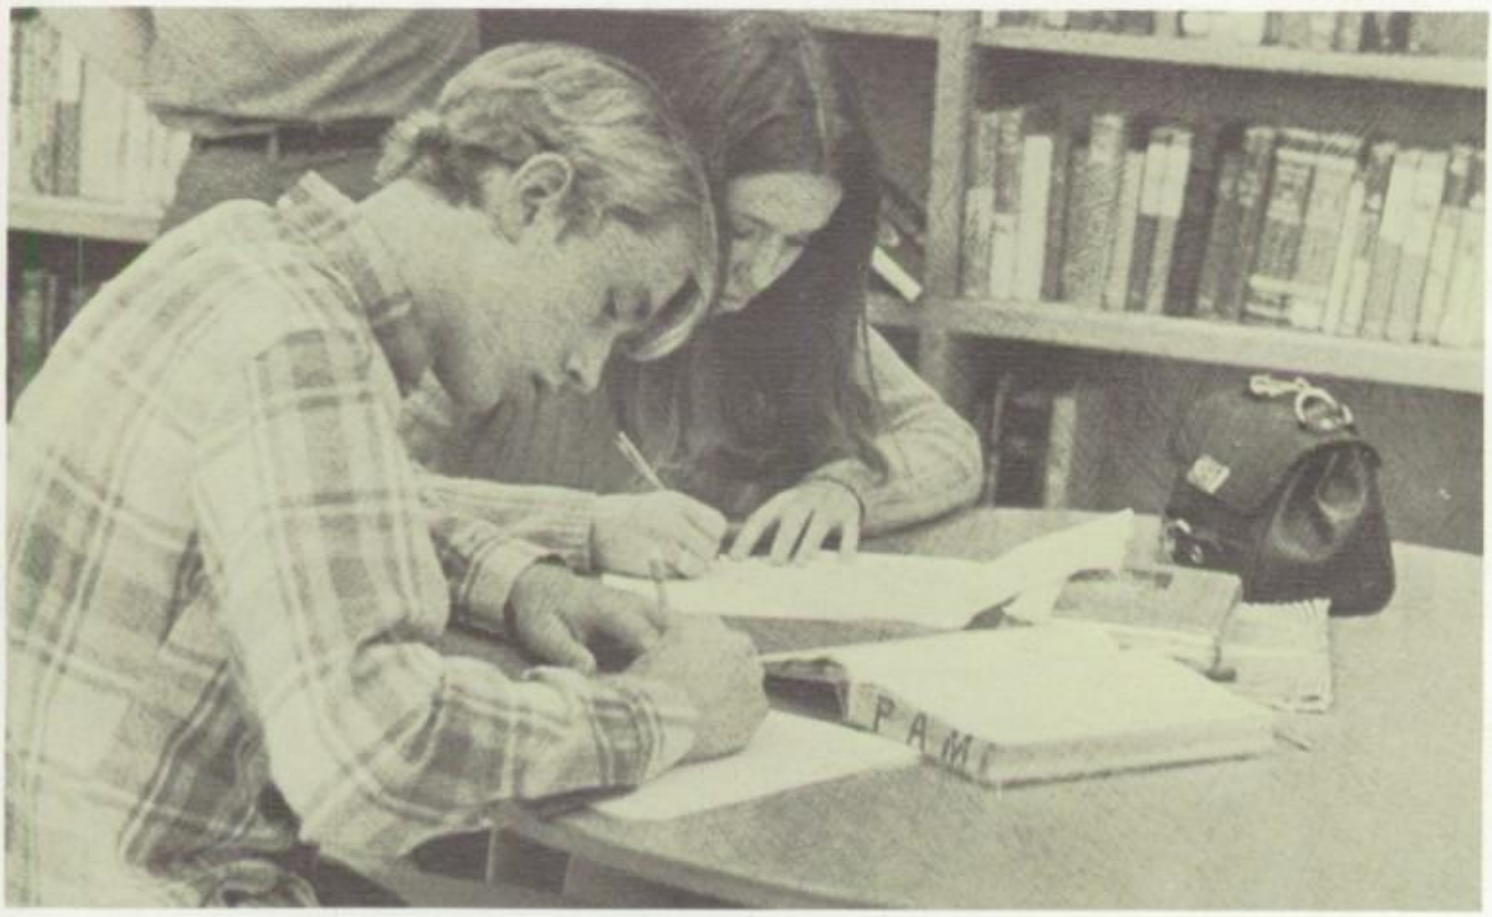
. . . the elation of victory, the despair of defeat.



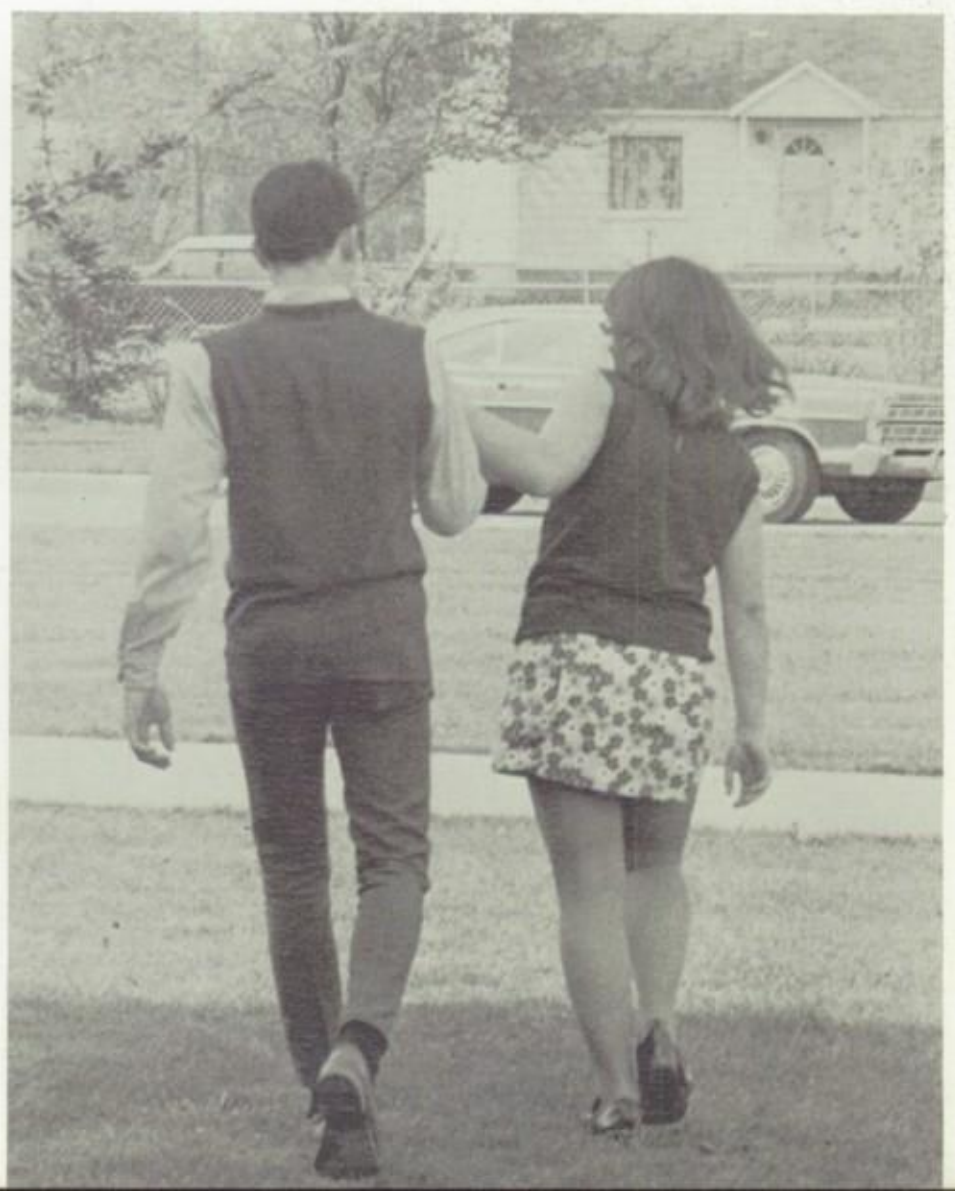


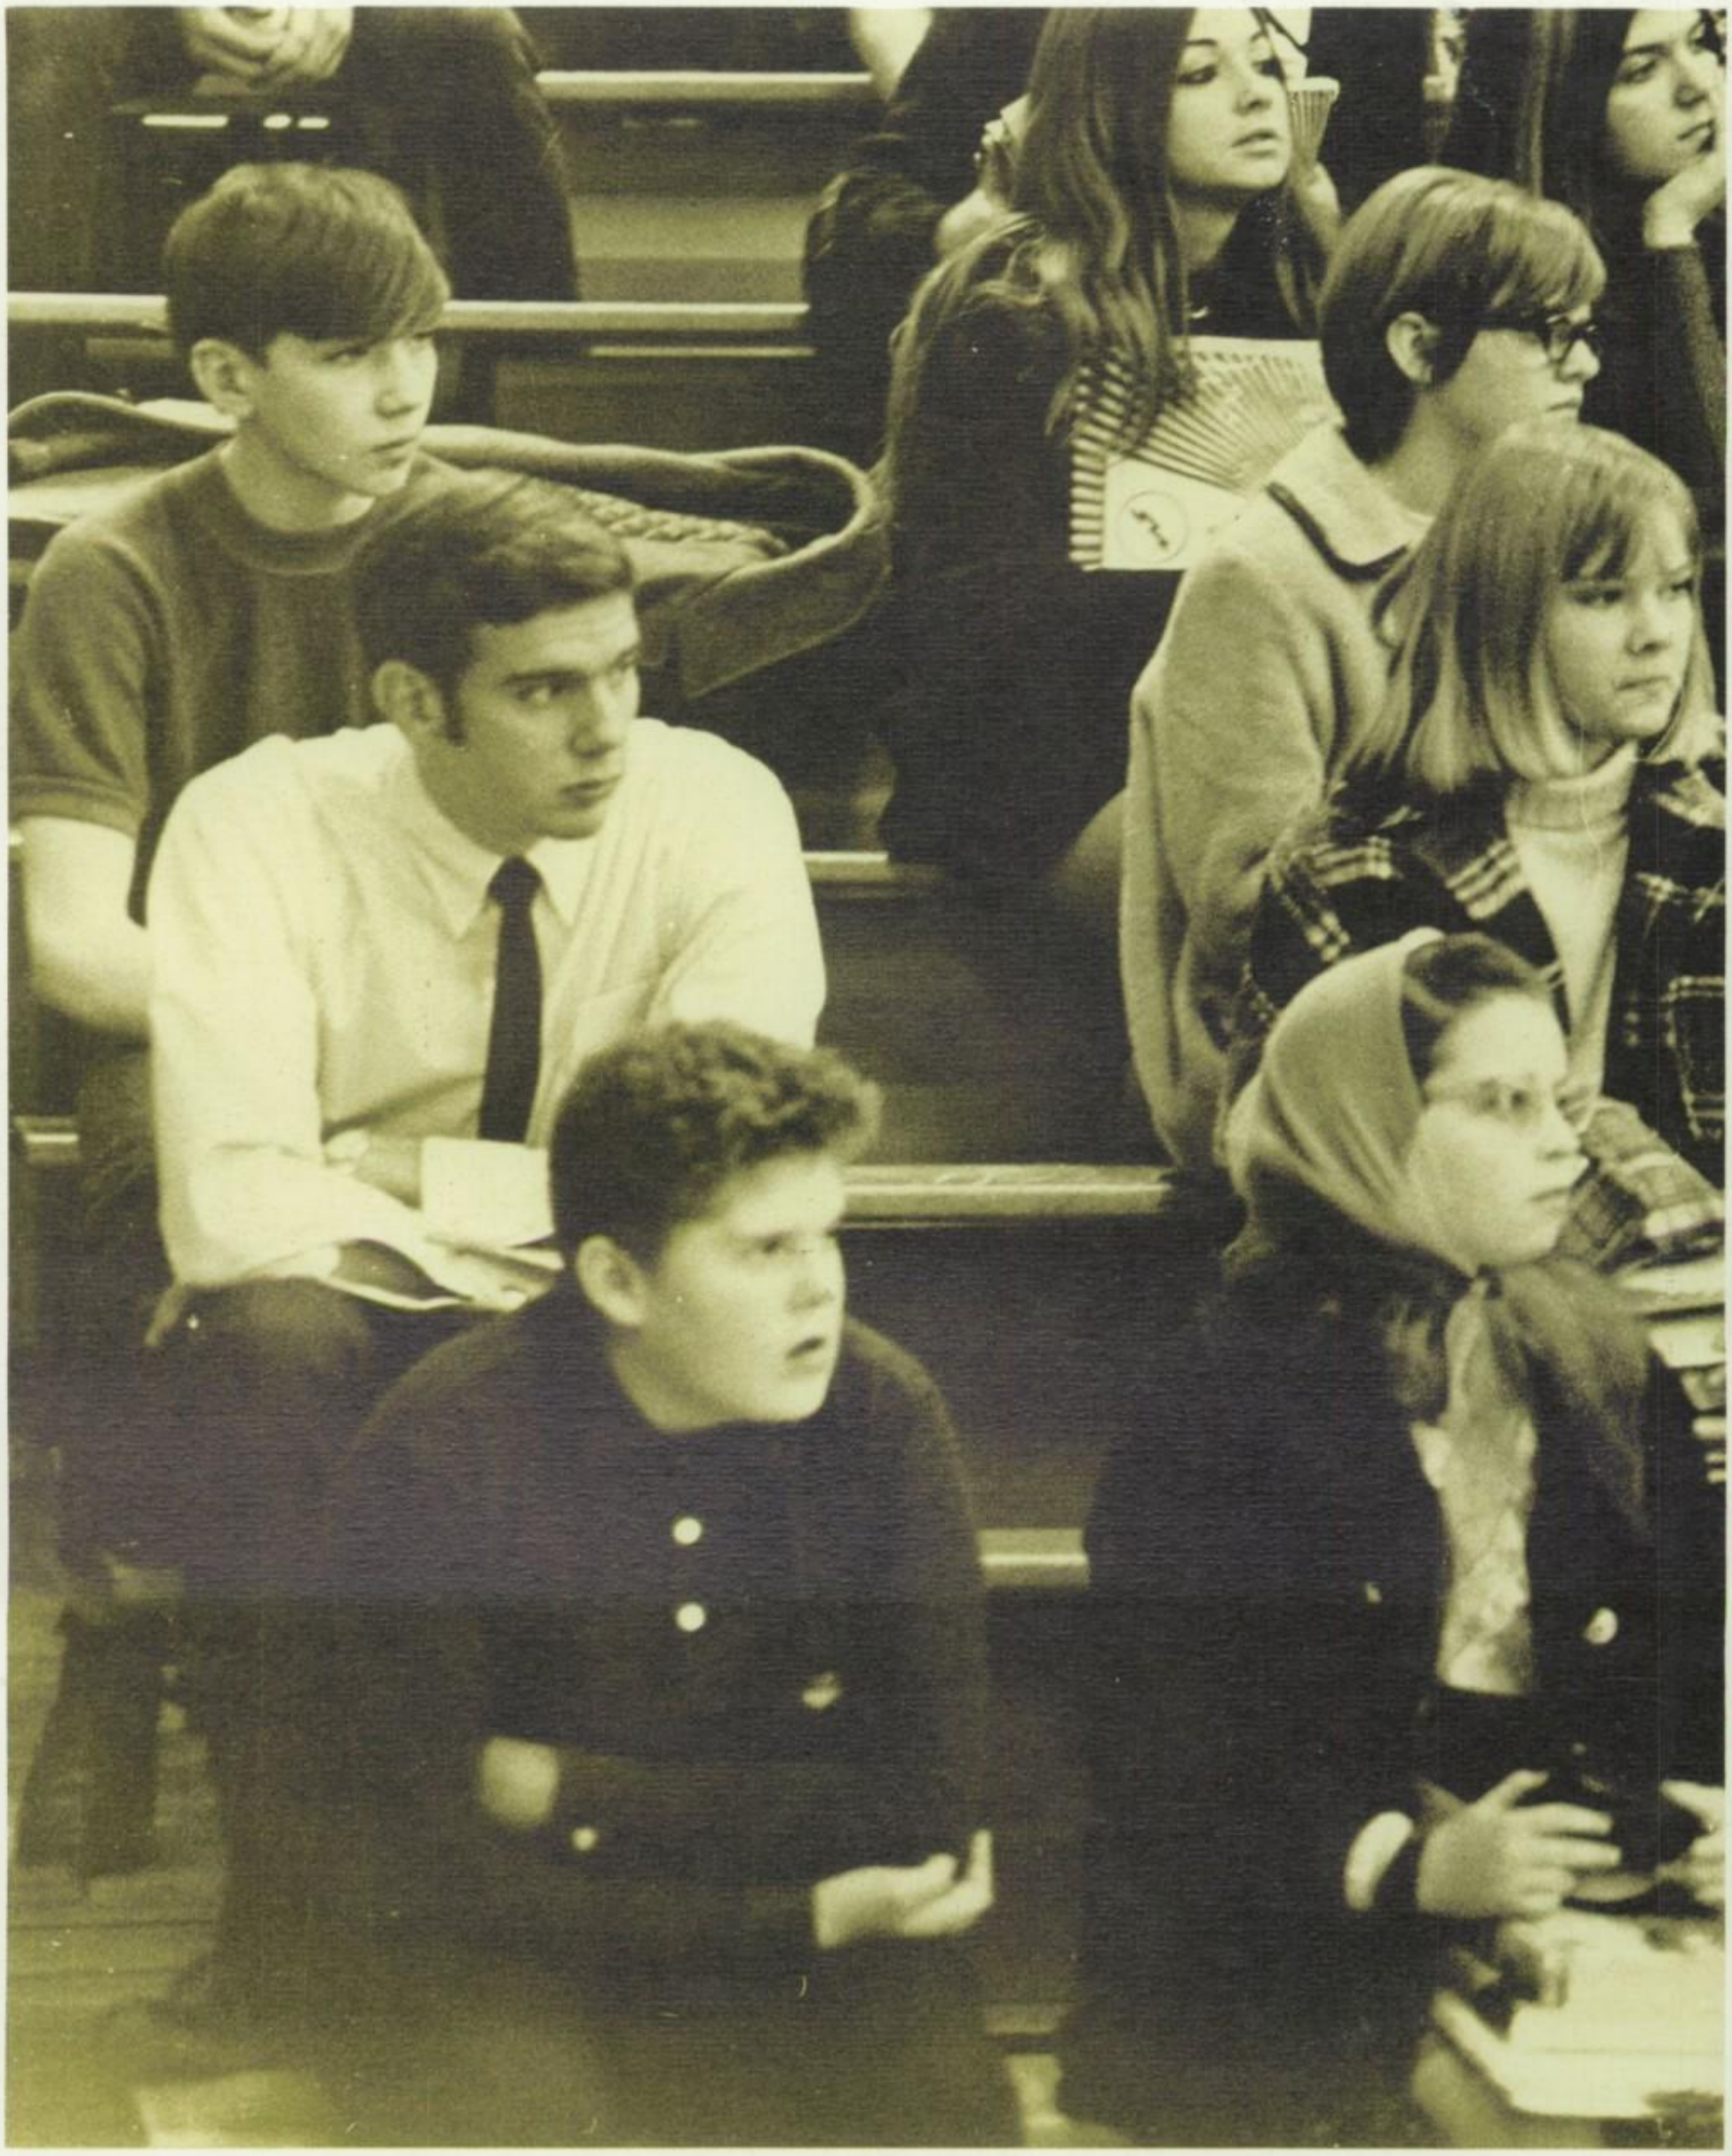


As he grows he begins to notice changes in those around him. He watches the couples drift apart but soon draw more closely together. He sees their sad times and happy times, the quarrels and reconciliations, and finally learns that relevant relationships are not based on outward appearances or surface actions, but on deeply private feelings and truth from within the soul.

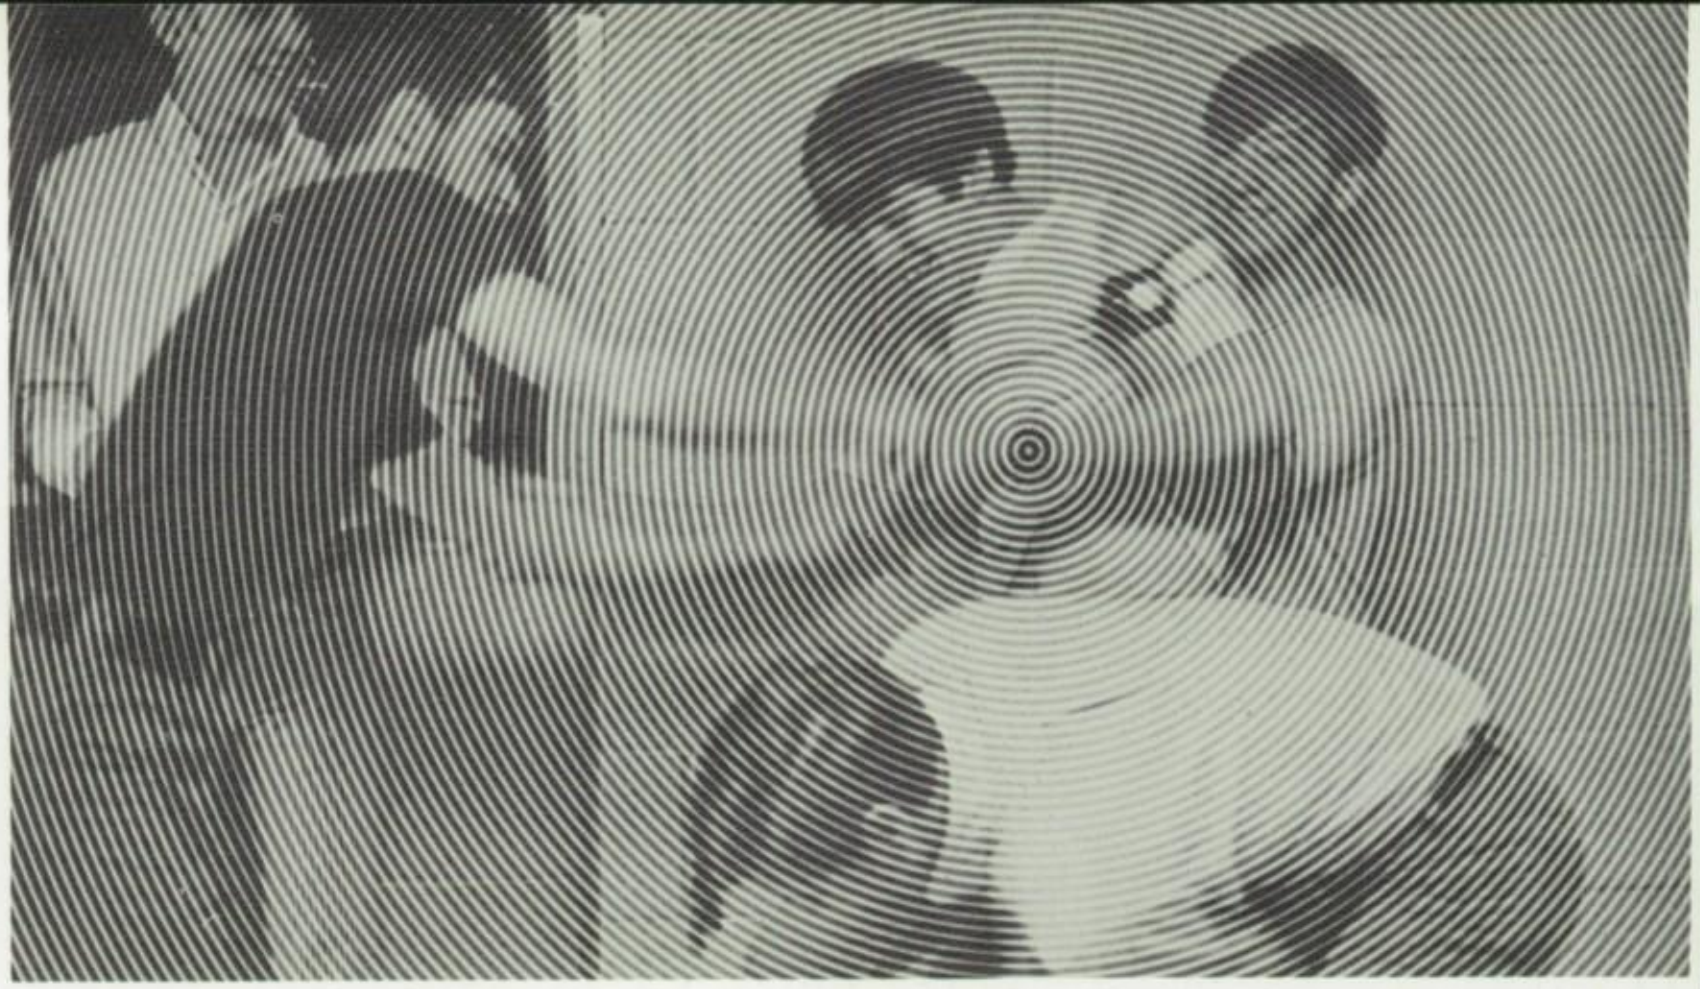


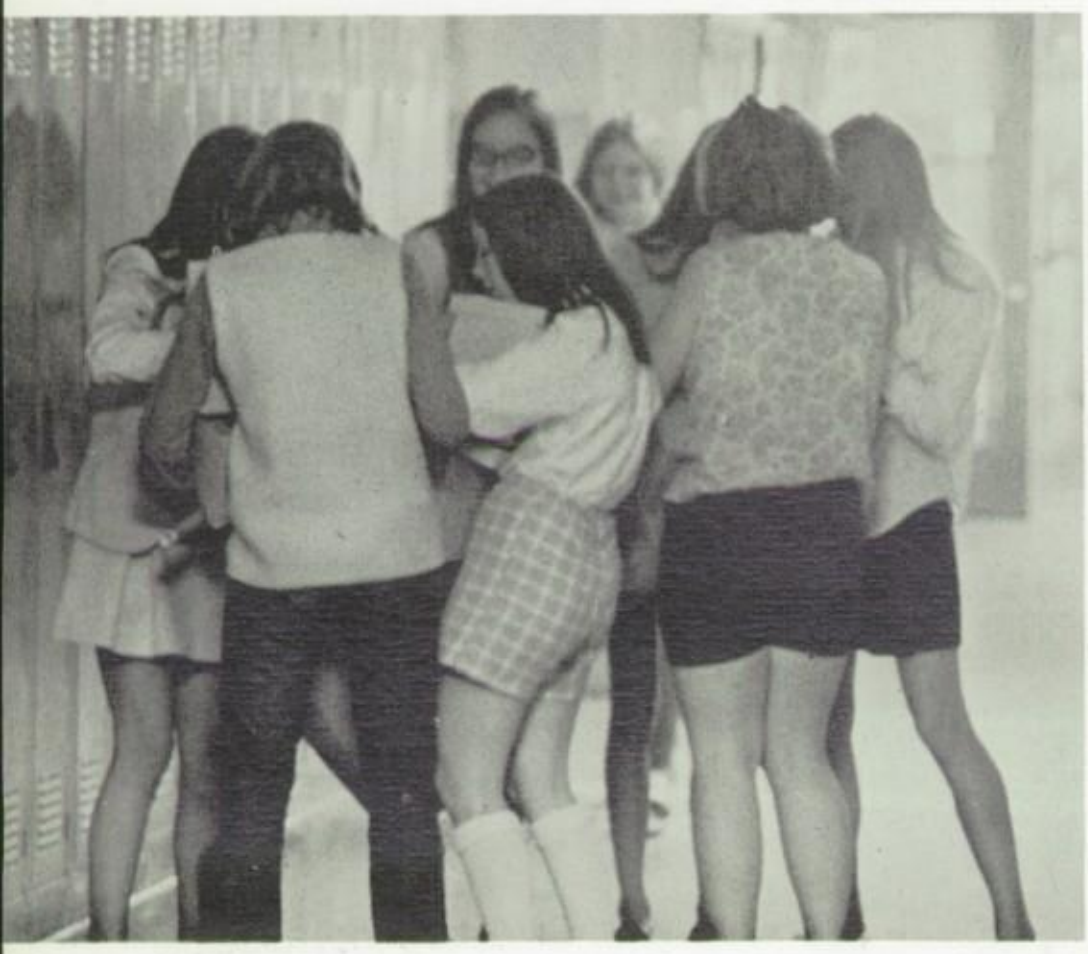
PAM



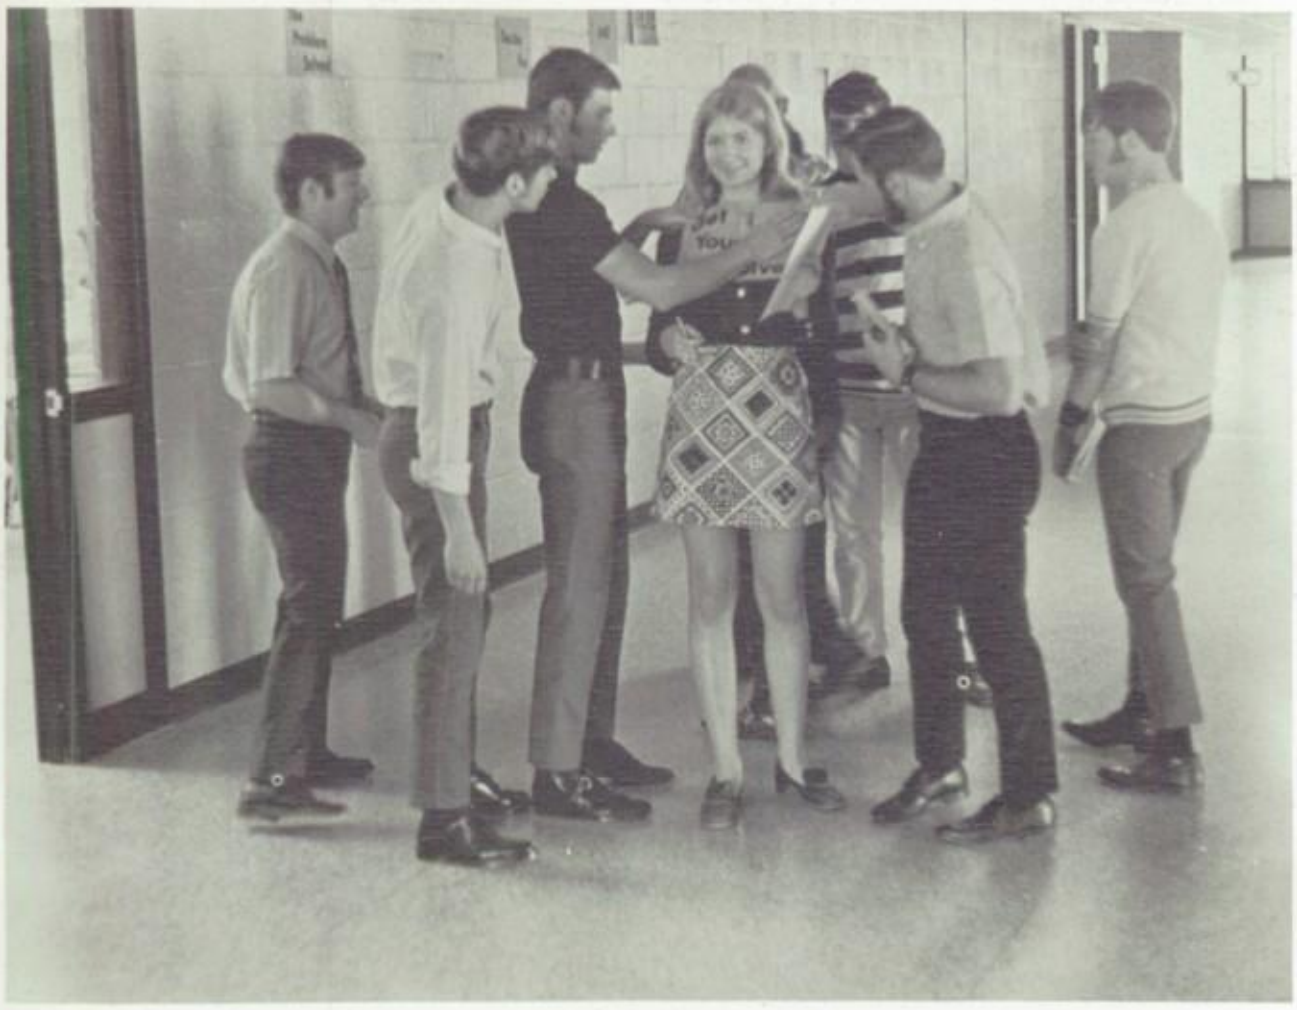


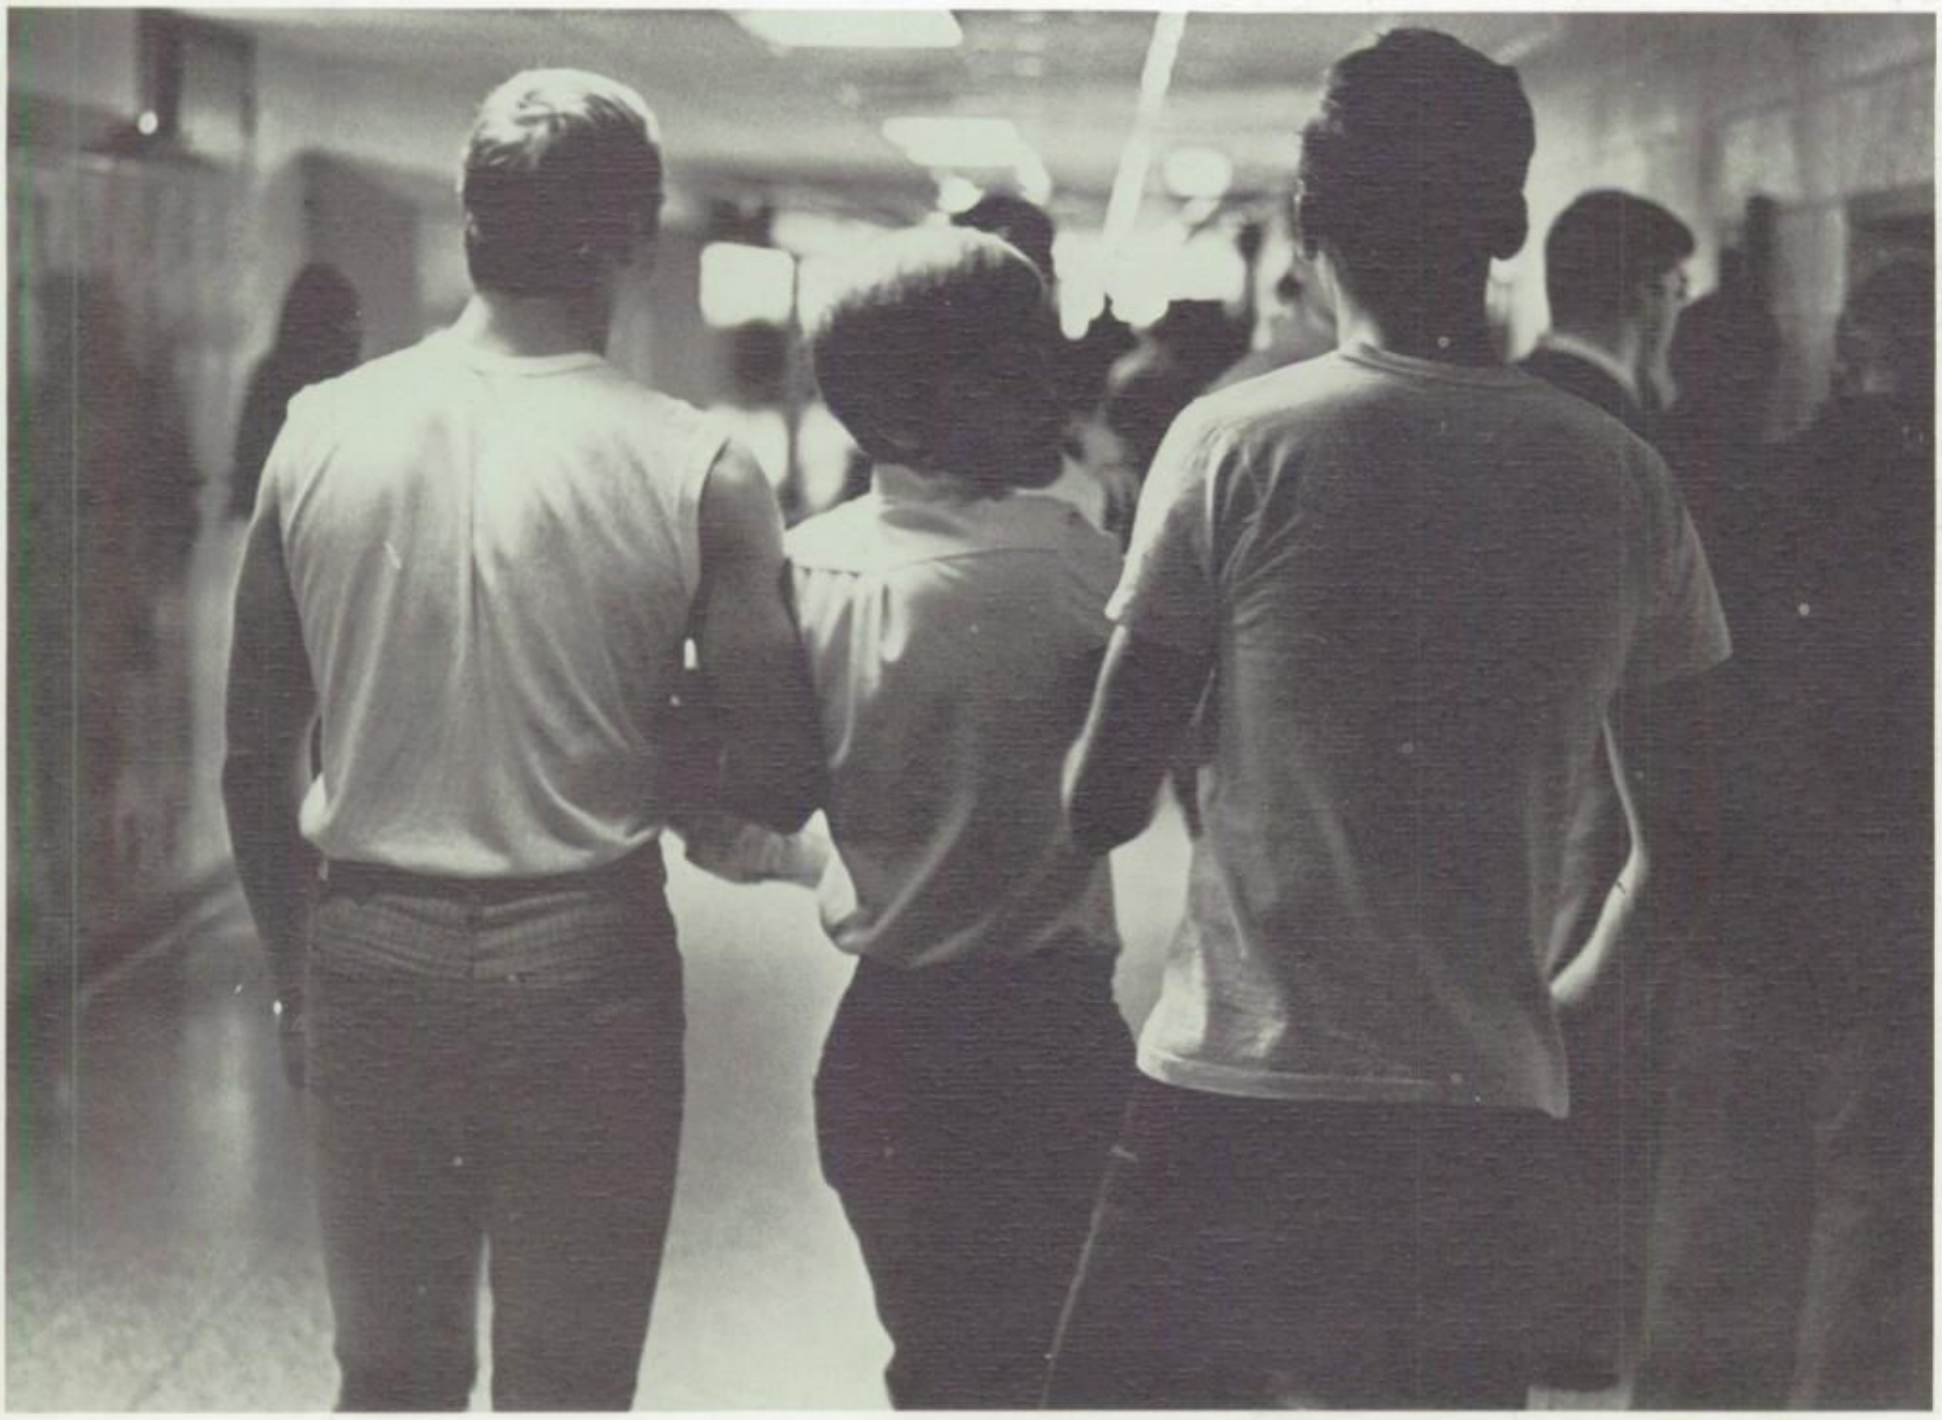
He watches reunions of old friends and the formation of new relelationships, never realizing that he stands in the midst of many people who are just as alone as he is. He remembers the silent misunderstanding of rejection and the reassuring protection of acceptance.



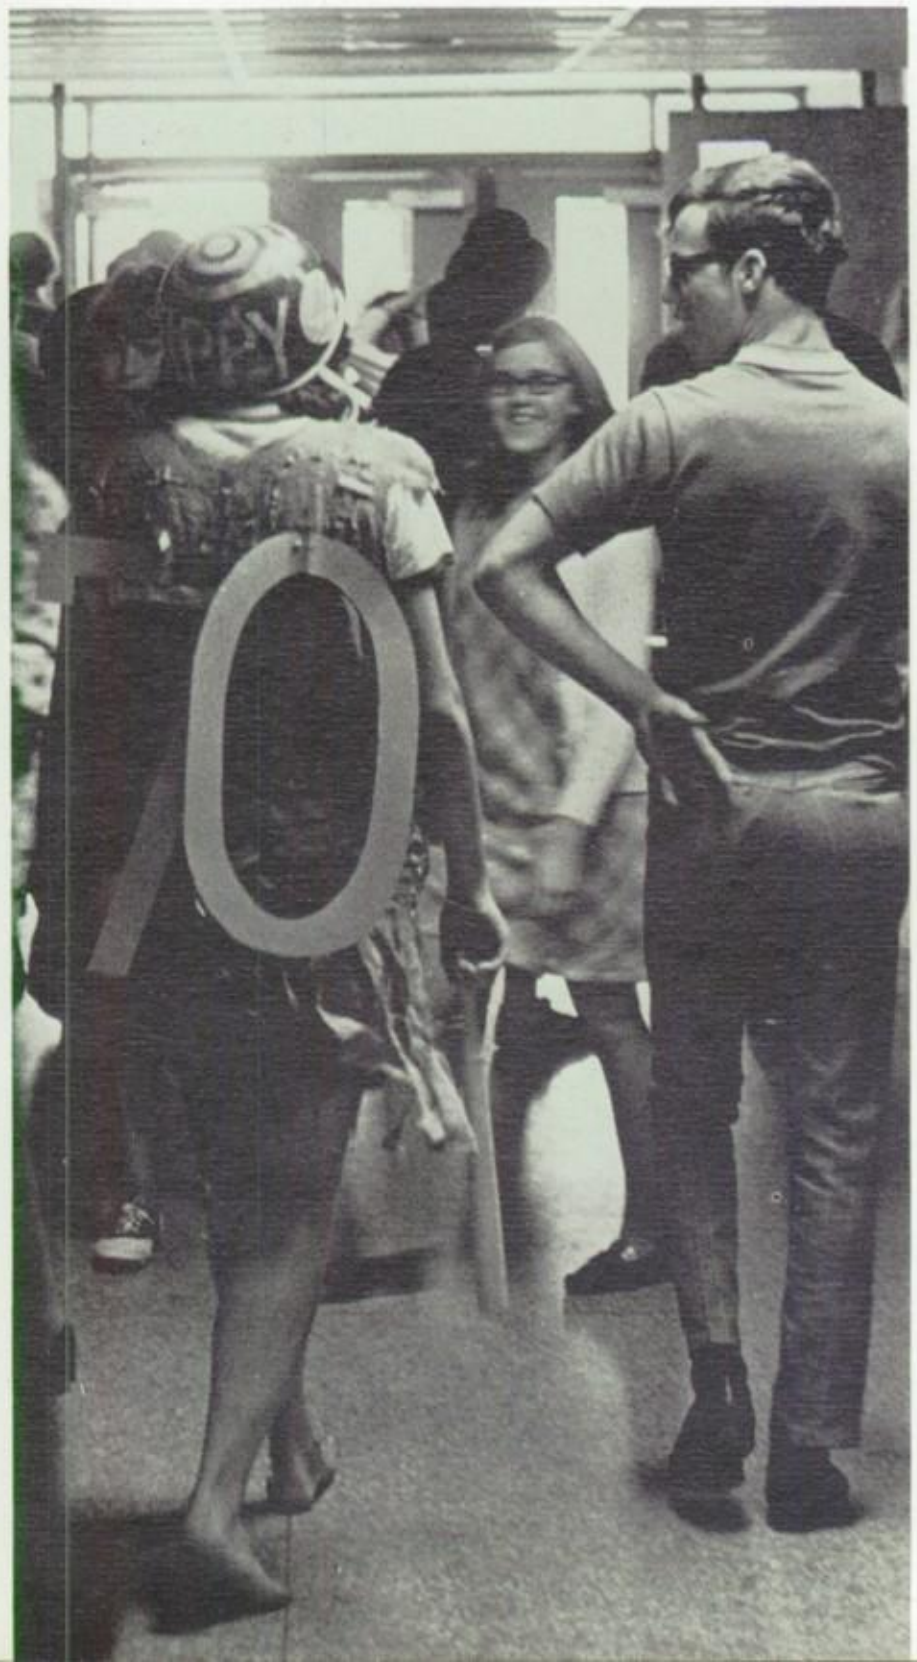


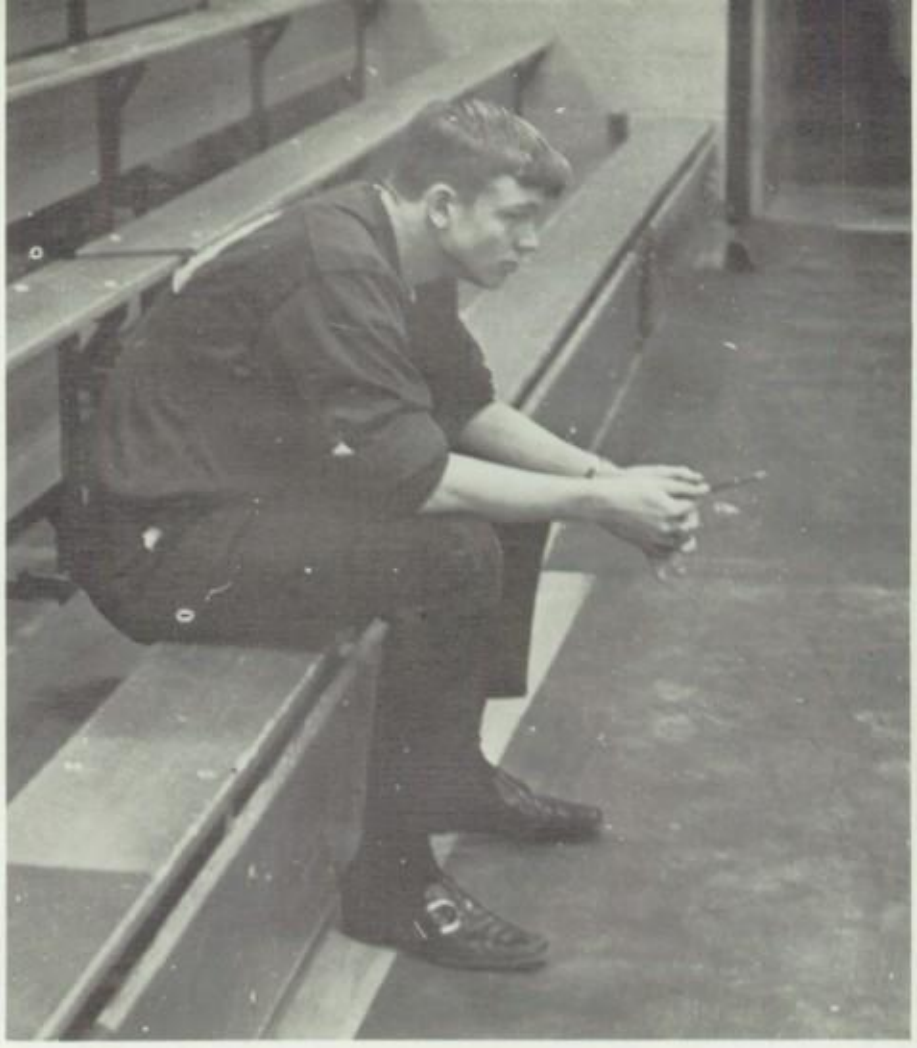
The enjoyment he derives from his relationships and interactions with others camoflage the dull monotony of class and study and somehow, he finds he is able to go on . . .





To the freshman, activities that have long been an integral part of life at Ida seem somehow terribly remote and often very confusing . . .





A great realization grips him and, gazing about him he finds that his transition has taken four years; he is a senior now and the remembered moments have flown swiftly like the dove that symbolizes his fervent hope for peace of nation and mind. He finds himself headed for a future of protest and campus dissent or the morbid loneliness of an Asian battlefield and, finally, he comes to the realization that his only salvation is CHANGE . . .

1970 . . . THIS WAS THE YEAR!!!

BAND

Changes— from the embarrassment of a missed note to the self-indulgent pride of a well received concert, from the repulsive squawk of a broken reed to the rippling harmony of a simple sonato, from the dis-organization and reluctance of practice to the precision and enthusiasm of football halftime, from rock to pop to classic and back again. The members differ, but the sounds are remembered . . . . .

ASSEMBLIES

Changes . . . from the ordinary surroundings of a school building to the overlooked beauties of the outside world, from the noise of a crowded hall to the folk tunes of the Netherlands, from the tension of math class to the relaxing vibrations of the Chicago Percussion Trio, from "Take out your papers!" to TAKE FIVE and ON A CLEAR DAY, from solitude to assembly . . . this is entertainment.

Right—The Chicago Percussion Trio

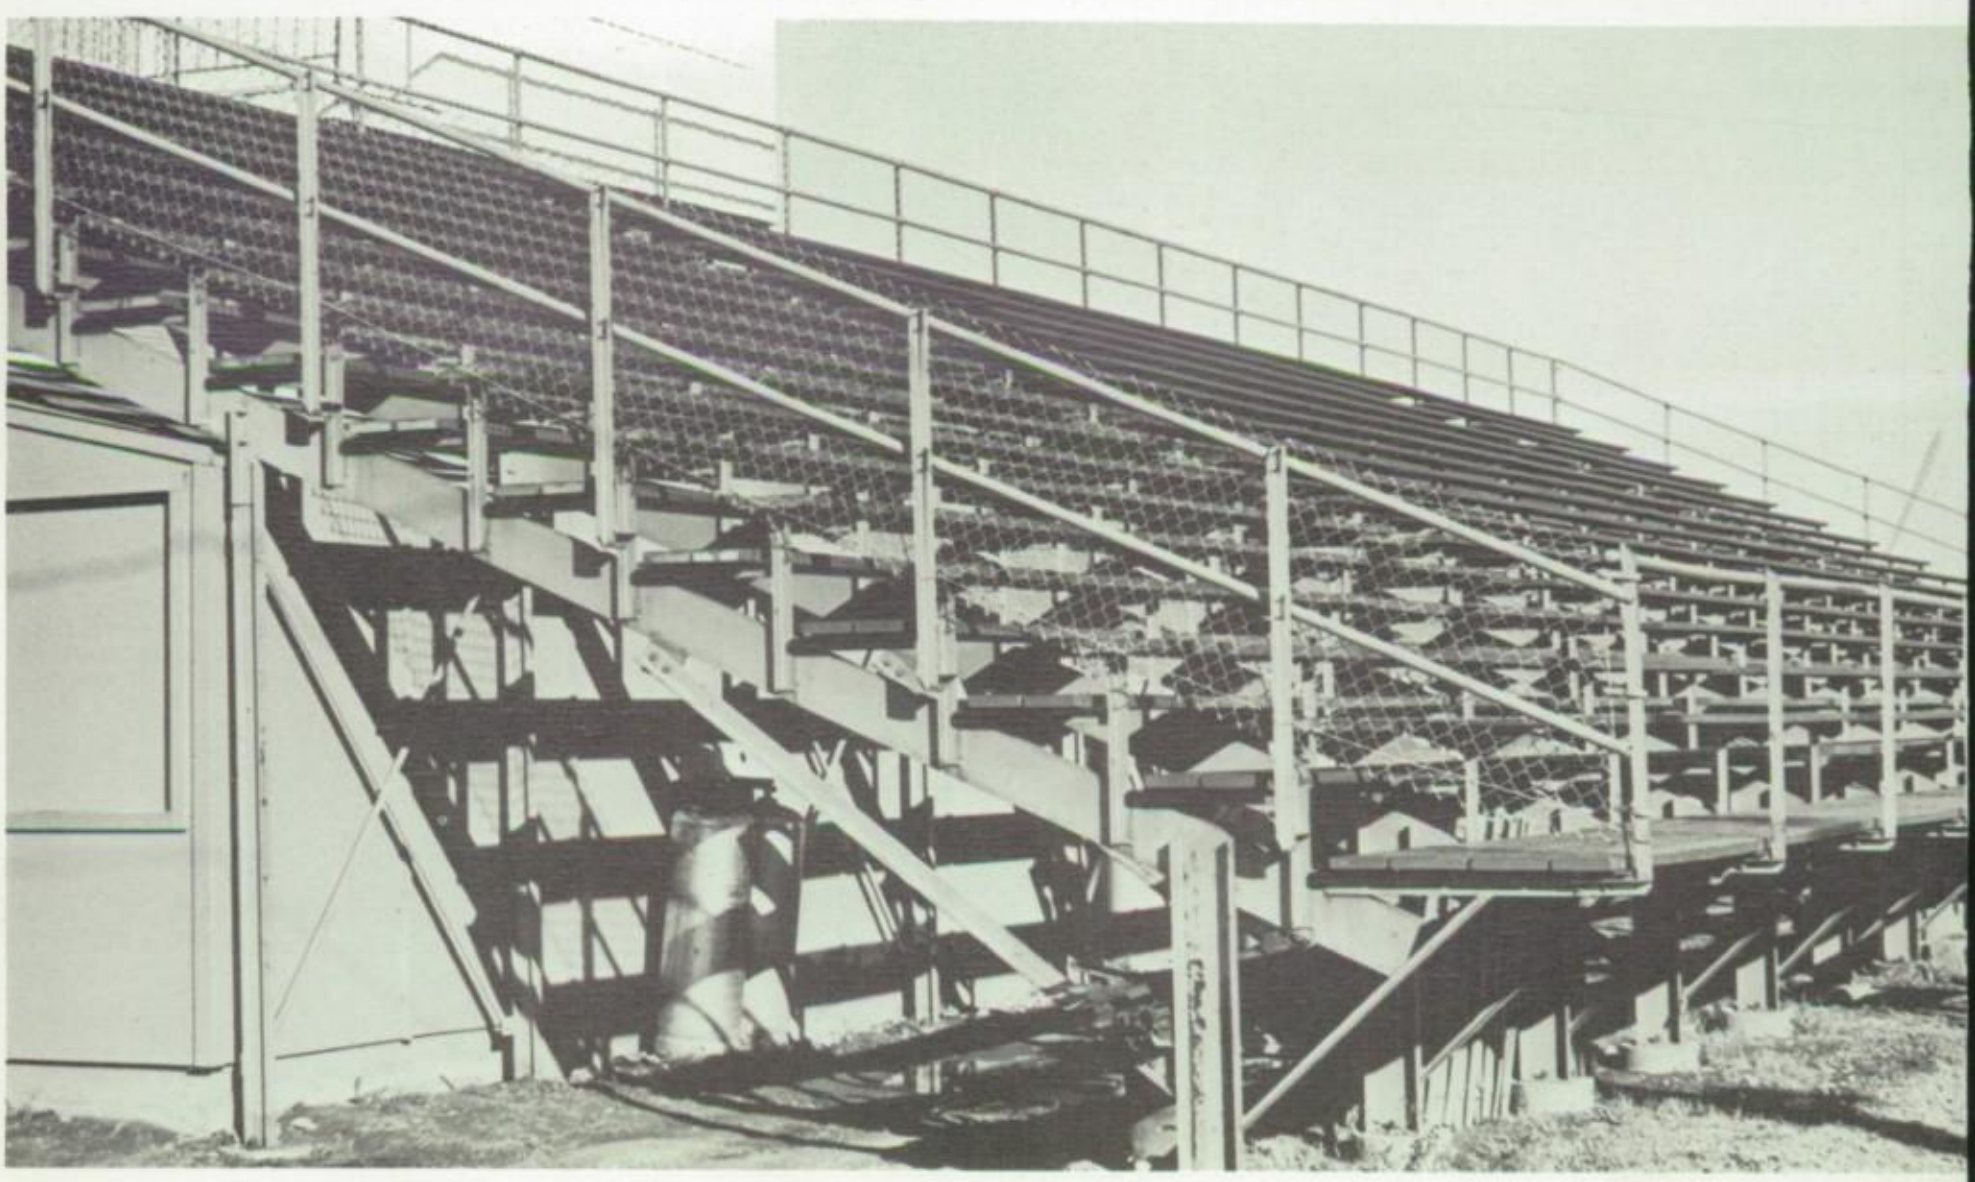
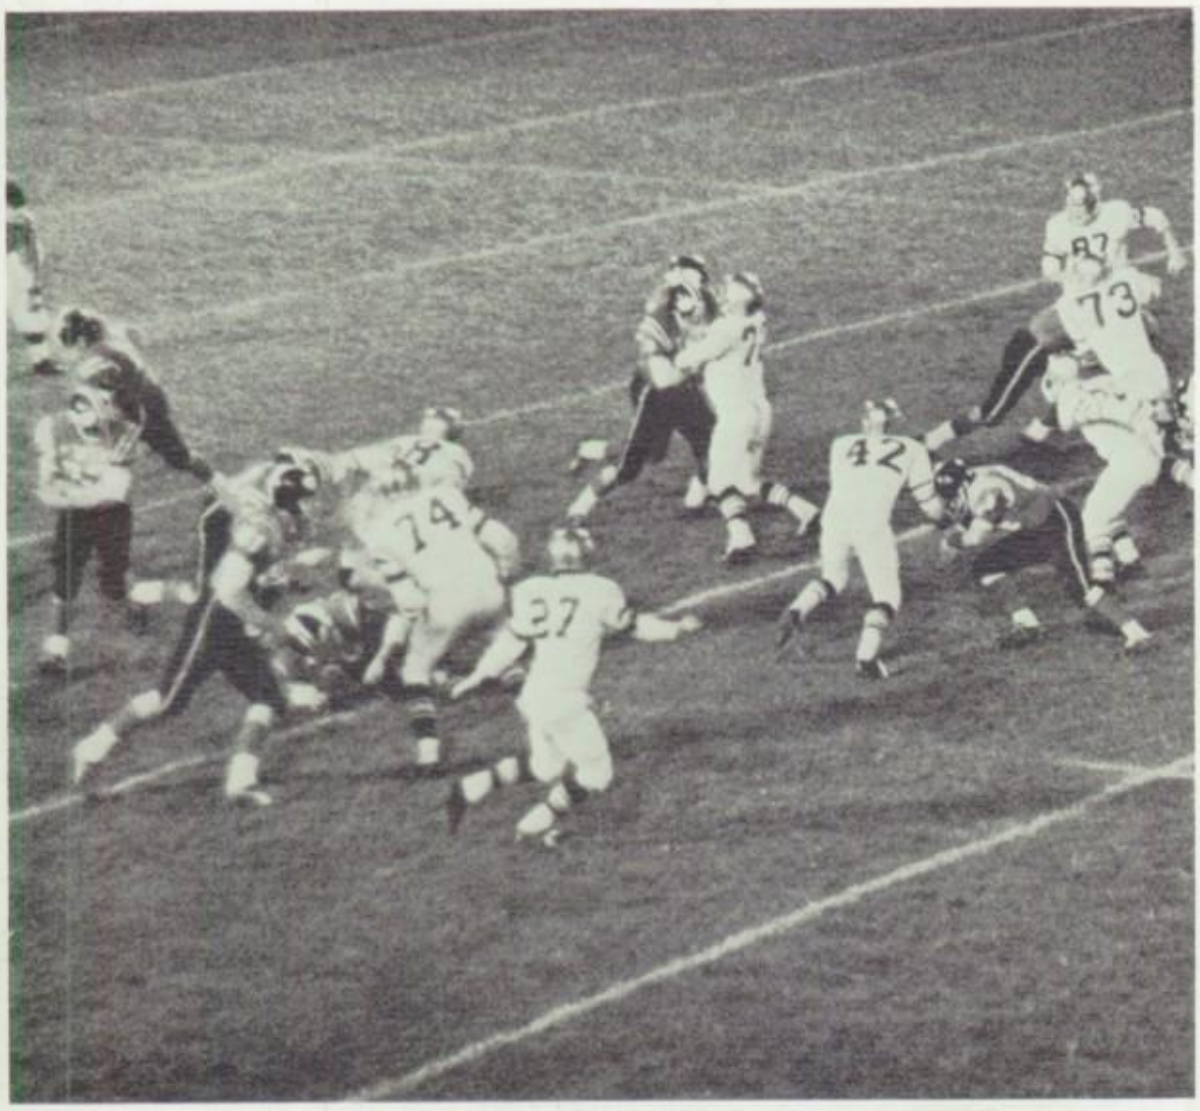
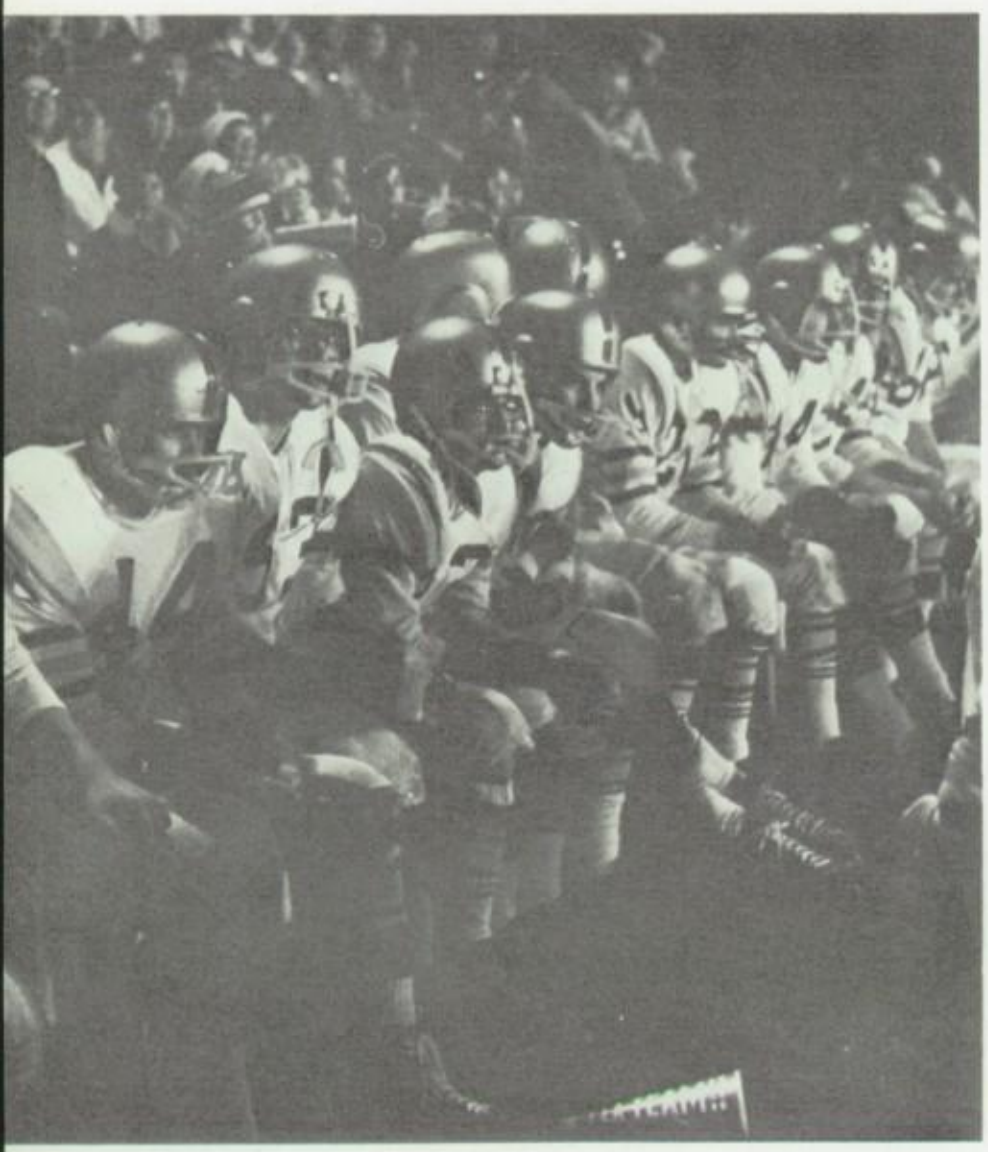
FOOTBALL

Changes—from dusty August afternoons to crisp October nights, from the echo of playing calls reverberating off row upon row of empty bleachers to the wild cheering of frenzied spectators, from the desire to be Number One to the reality of a River Raisin Conference Championship.



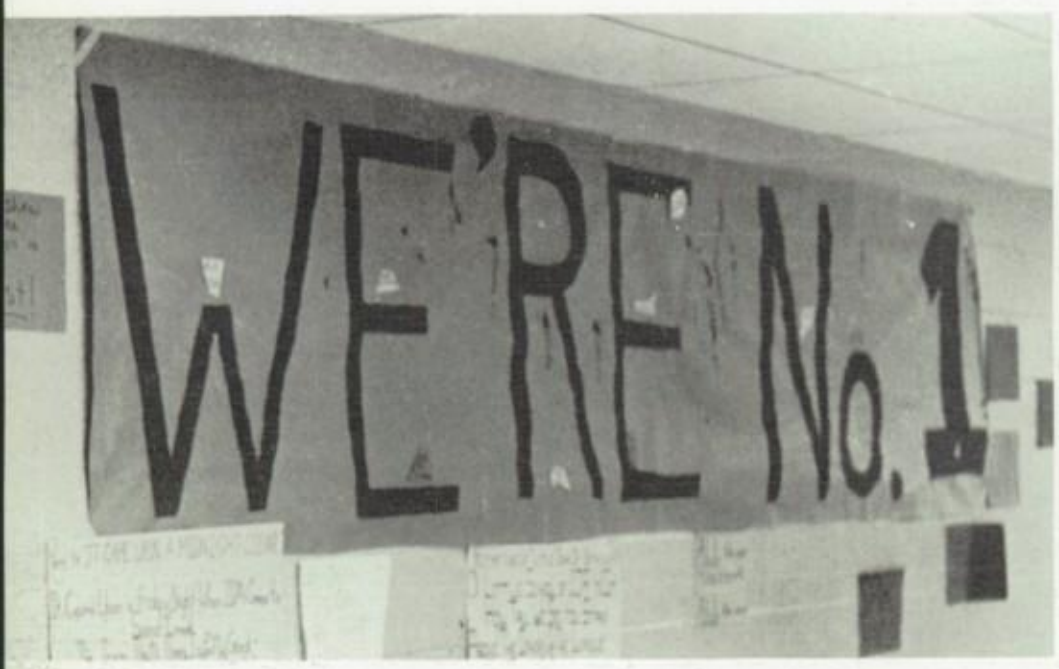


FOOTBALL



Changes . . . from the esthetic screaming cheerleaders to the tense concentration of the bench; from the thrill of a well caught pass to the realization that the mere lashing of a shoulder pad was the turning point in the Championship game.

HOMECOMING



Senior Class Float—First Prize

Changes . . . .from the muted stir of energy deep in the soul to the desire for a rip-roaring celebration . . . . from a pile of logs to a blazing bonfire surrounded by spirited cheerleaders and exhausted band members . . . . from a can of paint to a brightly-colored poster . . . .

. . . . from a broken down farm wagon to a prize-winning float . . . . from a mass of crepe paper and chicken wire to a creation of enchantment . . . . from an idea to a reality . . . . from arguments and irritations to tears and happy smiles as the Seniors win first prize for the first and last time.

HOMECOMING

The glare of the lights, a cheering crowd, circling floats of pastel crepe and crumpled newsprint . . . so this is what homecoming is made of . . . I guess I should have been prepared for this air of electric excitement, but I am certainly nervous . . . we are such little people on this field in comparison to this mammoth group of spectators . . . and, as we stand here, quaking in our elegant gowns of velvet and lace, I know that I'll never again—in all my life—experience this peculiar feeling of anticipation and dread . . . red roses and . . . Me? . . . Oh, thank you . . . I'm so confused . . . such beautiful flowers . . . I don't believe it . . . such wonderful people . . . me!

Rocky Iott—QUEEN

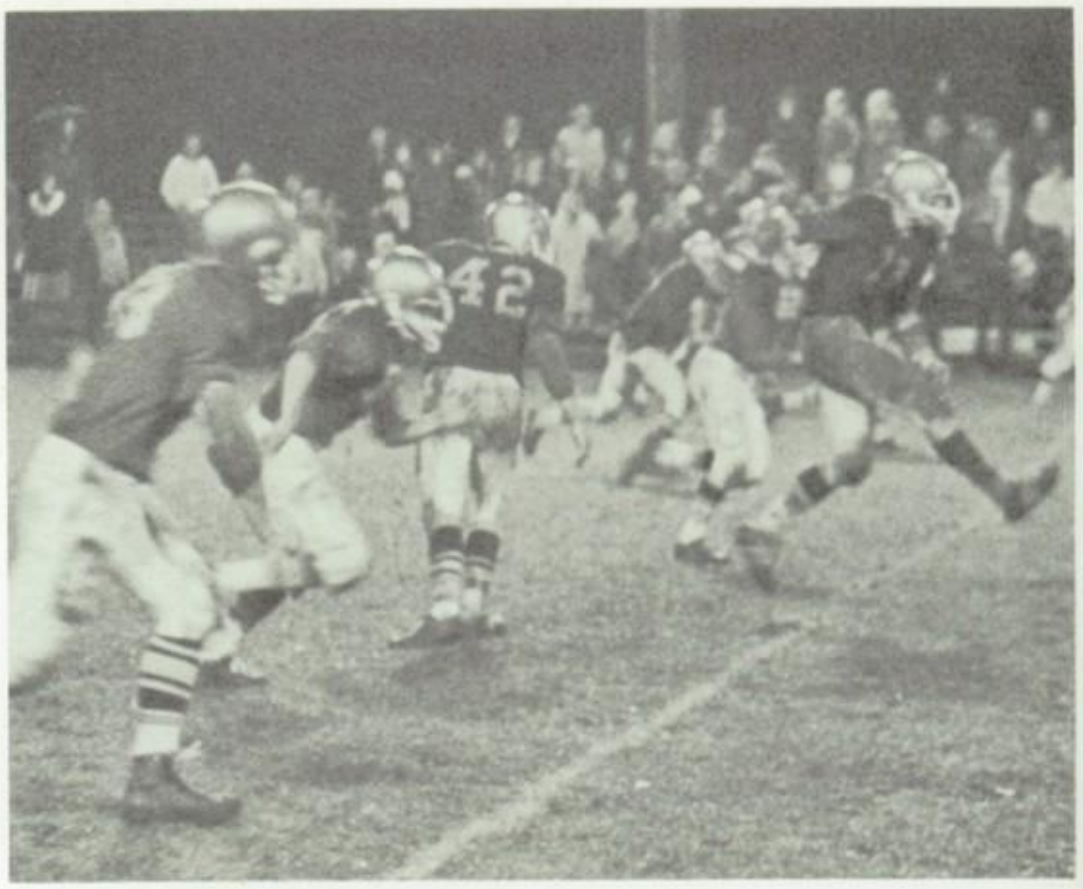
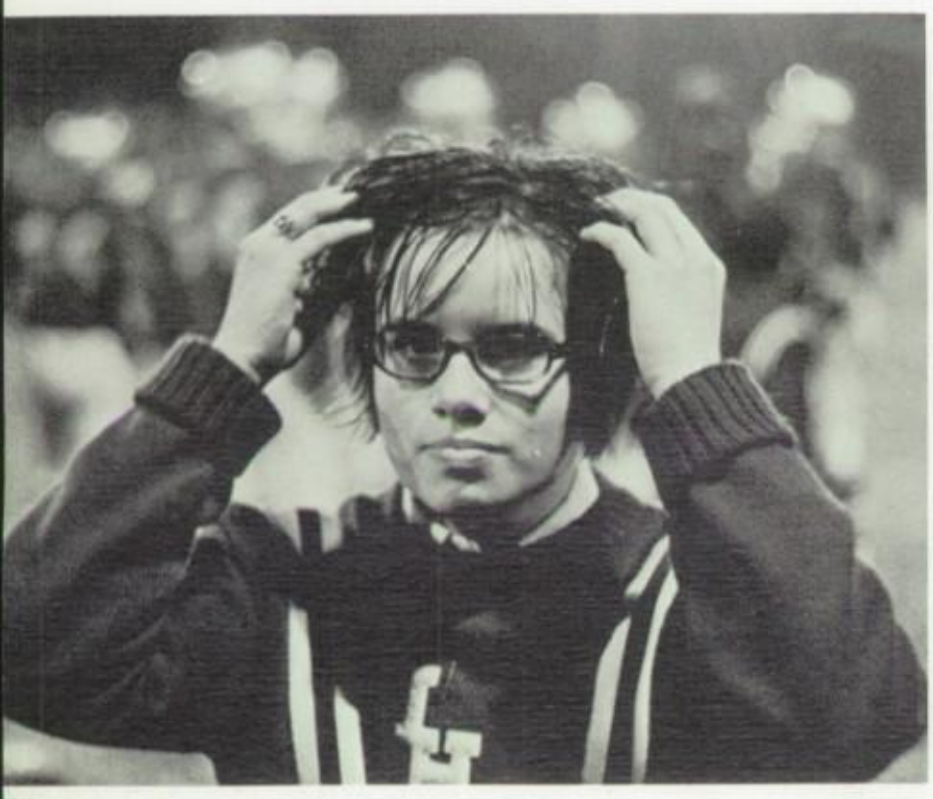
Below—Joan Schmidt

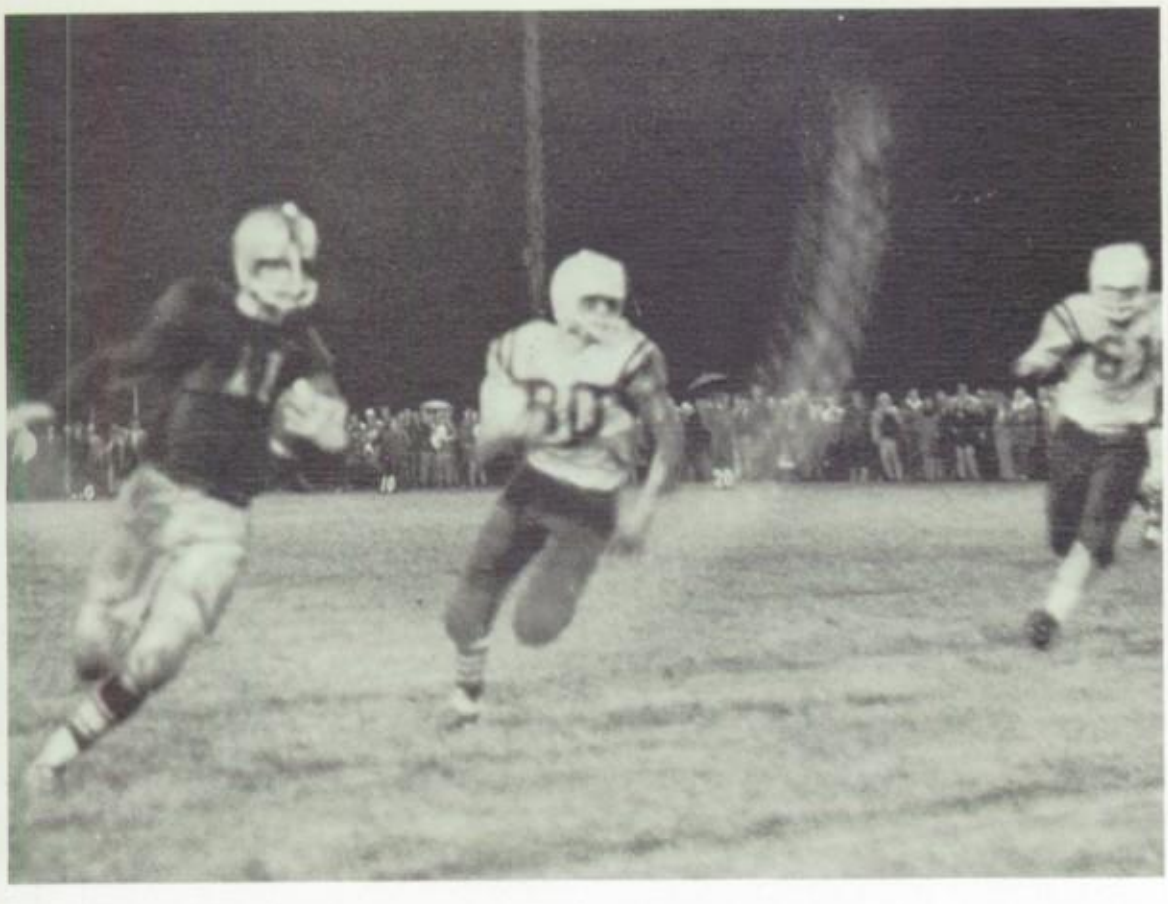
Suddenly, the mood Changes . . . from pageantry to hard hitting action, from the formalities of homecoming to the driving need to win a game and perfect the celebration. The moment is gone like a many hued butterfly. We held it for a short while—until it spread its translucent wings and flew back in time to be wrapped in the cocoon of memory and sleep until we call it back.

FOOTBALL

Not all football games prove to be cold or easily won and, sometimes, it becomes difficult to distinguish the raindrops from the tears. The players combine hard work with team effort to achieve their mutual goal. The season ends and, though it is the last for some, the sweet taste of victory seems to last forever . . .



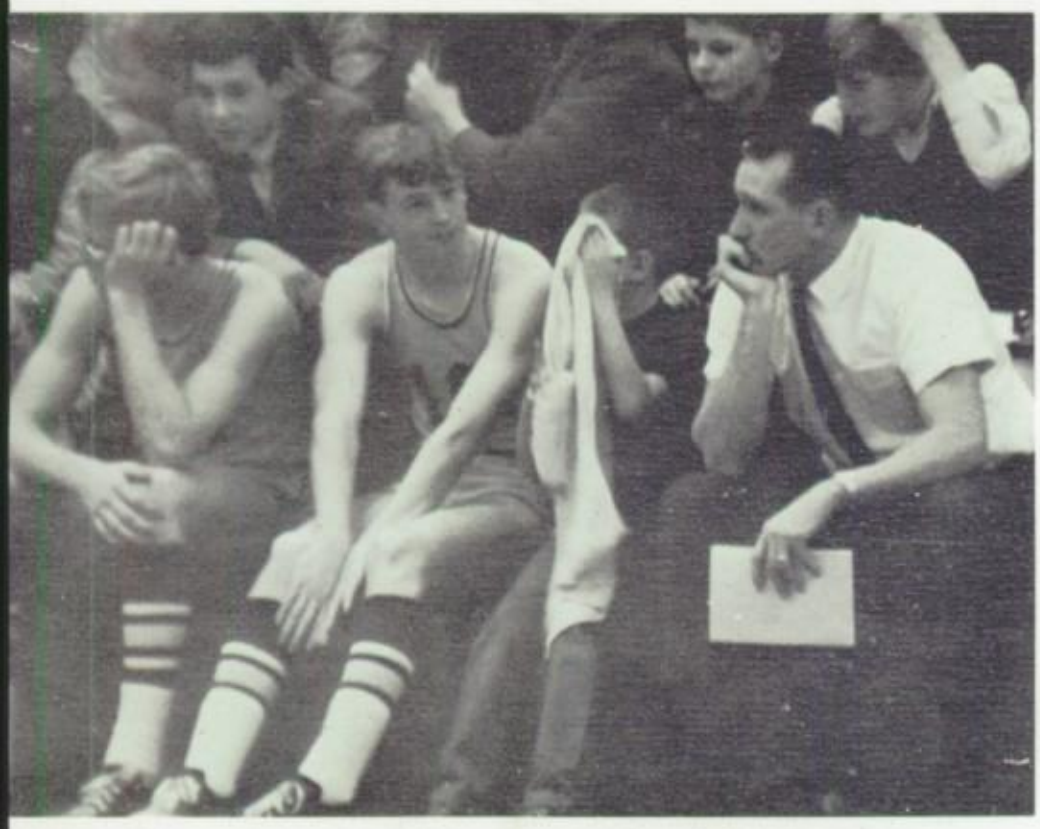




Final game . . . final score . . .
We're Number one.

BASKETBALL

Changes—from practices marked by hard work and long hours to the bubbling elixir afforded by a gymnasium filled with chanting spectators, from the despair of a wicked after-school session to the floating sensations of pep rally and gametime, from the disgust of a missed rebound to the unexpected thrill of the winning shot.



SNOWBALL QUEEN

QUEEN—Jeanne DeVine; King—Jim Metz

COURT—Rex Sorter, Lucy De Jong, Sophomore; Sue Zimmerman, Jack Durbin, Juniors; Diana Heck, Tim Sepsey, Freshman.

Changes . . . from the average basketball game to an unusual occasion, from the despair of a mundane after-game dance to the elation of a mid-winter celebration. Gowned in Valentine colors, four very nervous girls stand in the middle of the gymnasium, feeling miles away from the people surrounding them. The announcement is heralded by cheers, happy tears are shed, and the Snowball festivities are just beginning . . . when suddenly, it is time for it all to end.

BASKETBALL

Overall talent and unusual cunning on the court become the driving forces behind a team of veterans. Brilliant posters line the gym as Ida fights for another championship and the contest is fast and hard. The River Raisin Conference title is tightly grasped and we are truly NUMBER ONE . . .

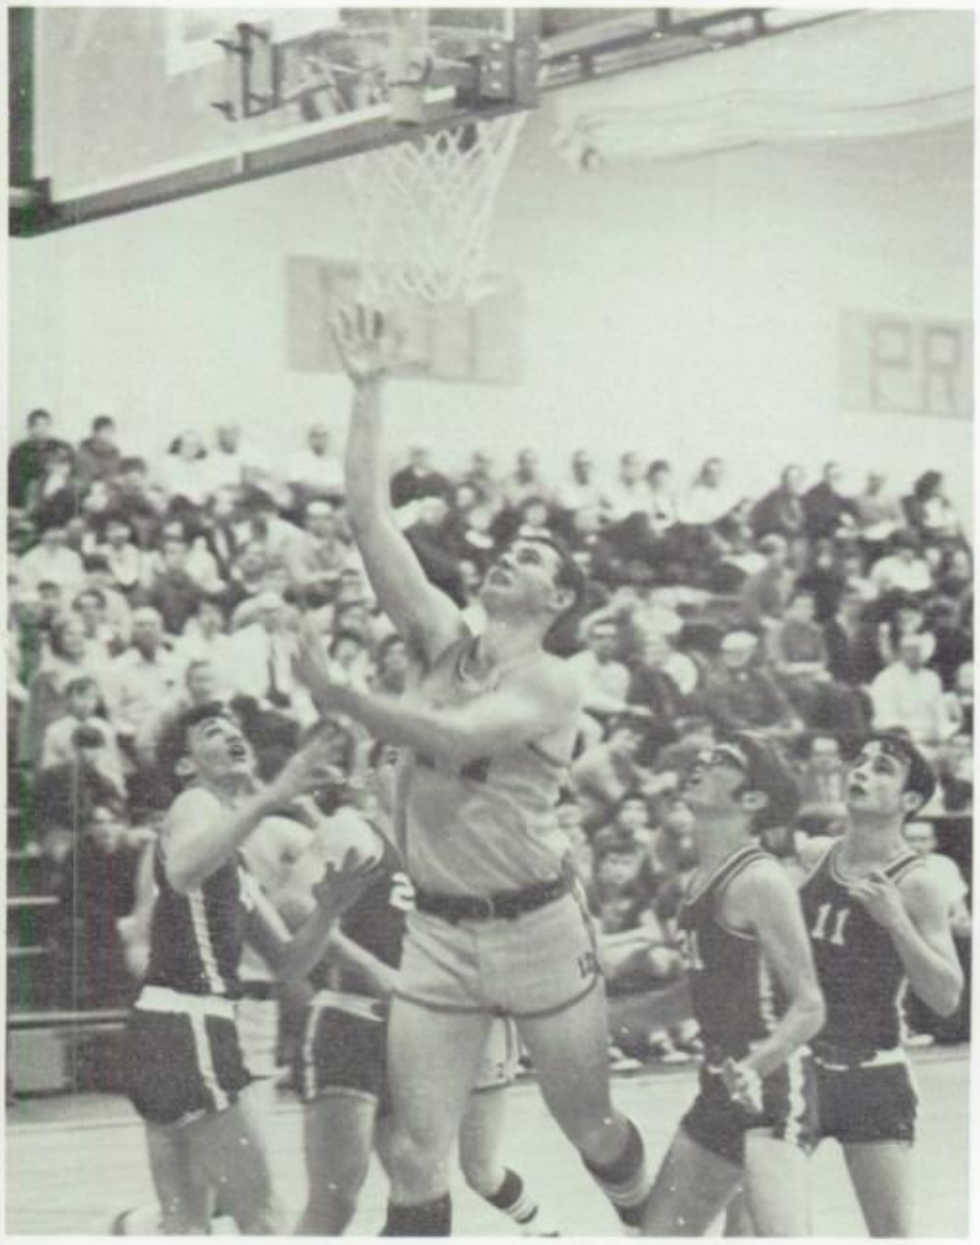
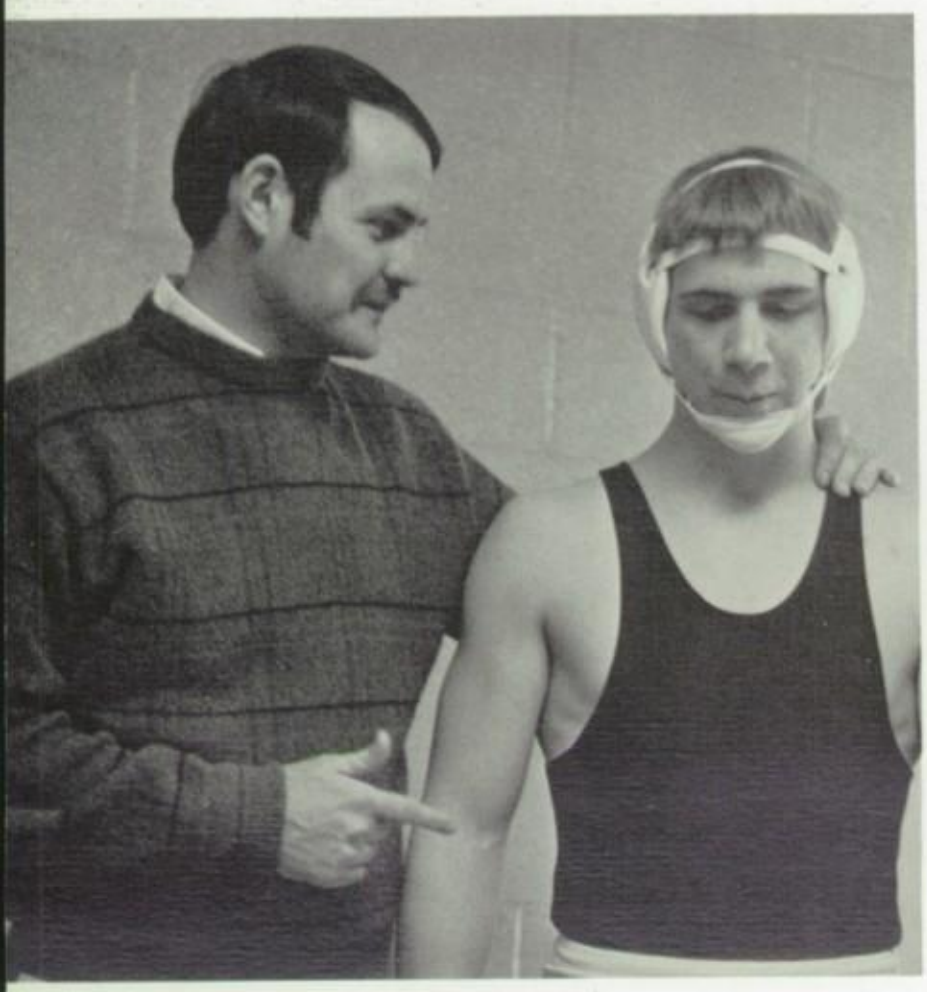
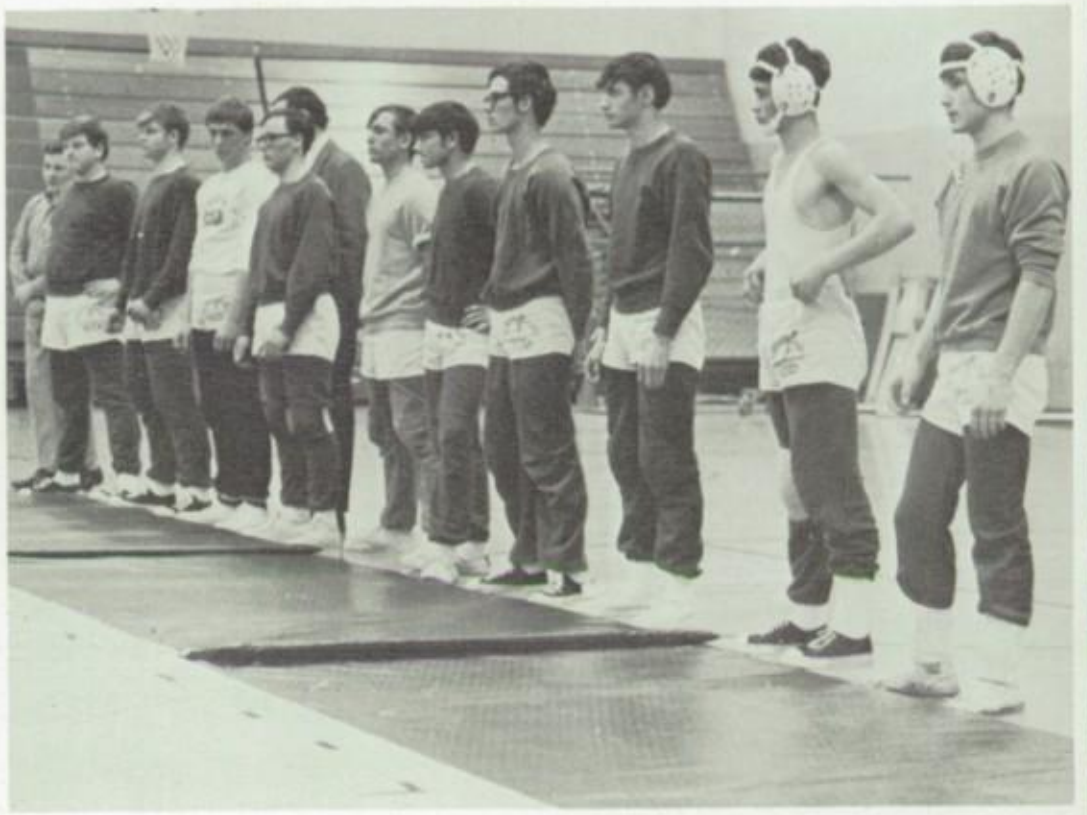
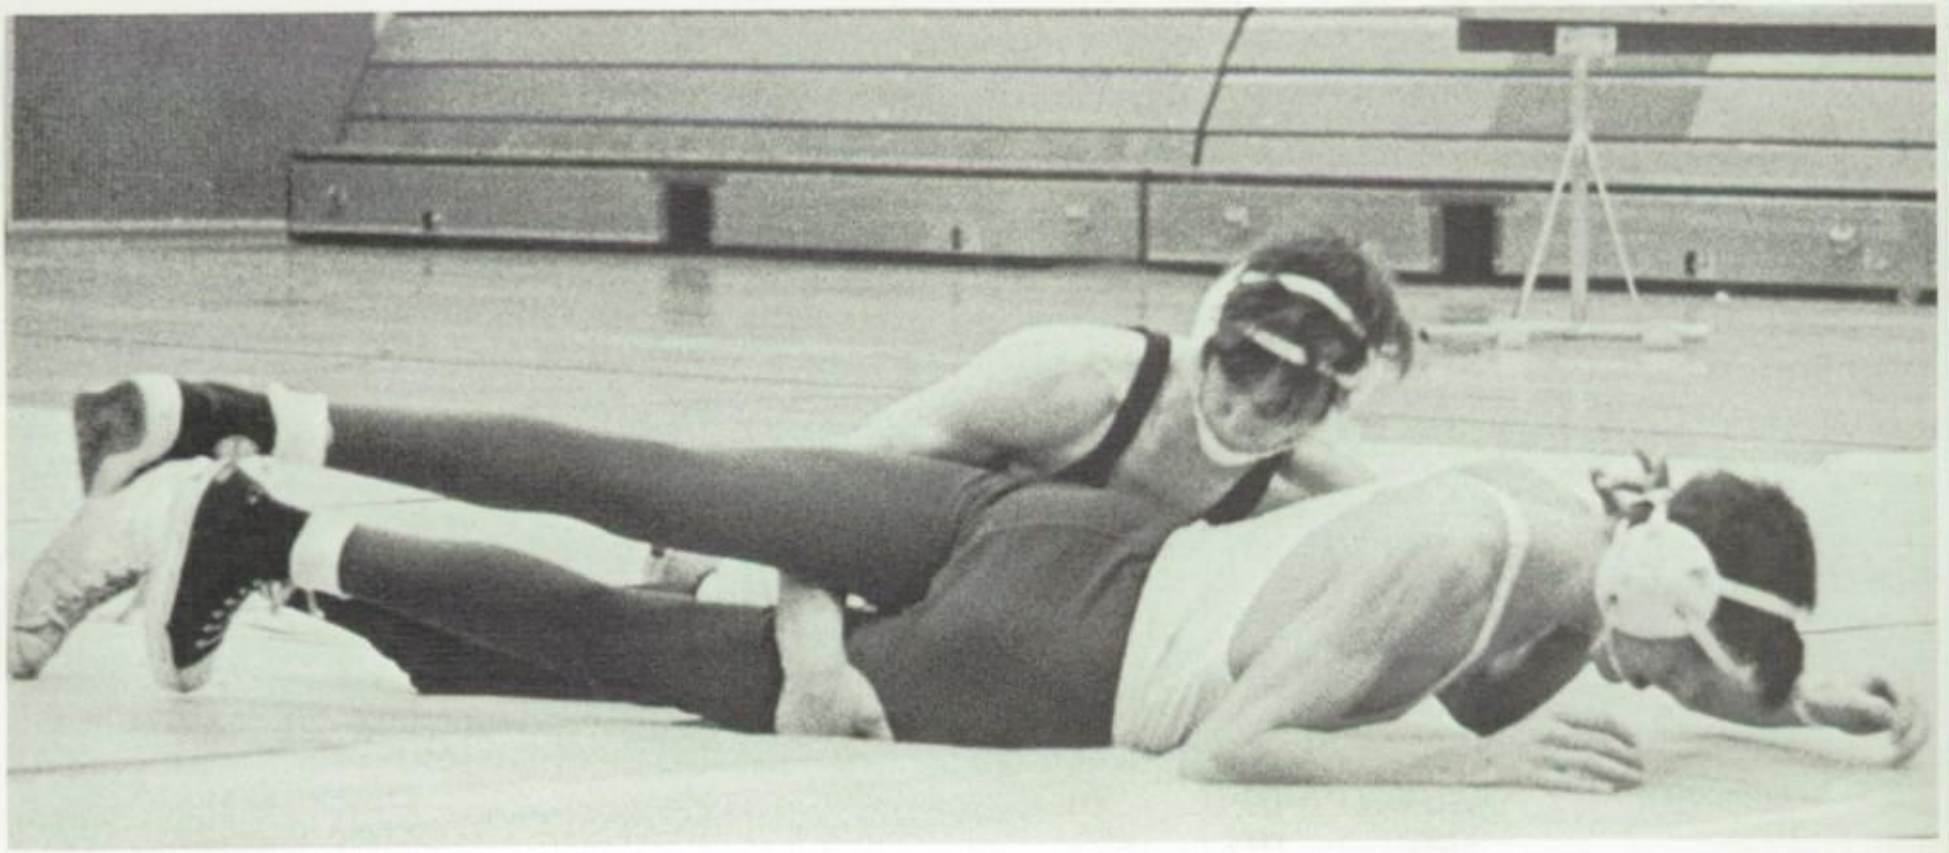
WE'RE NO. 1

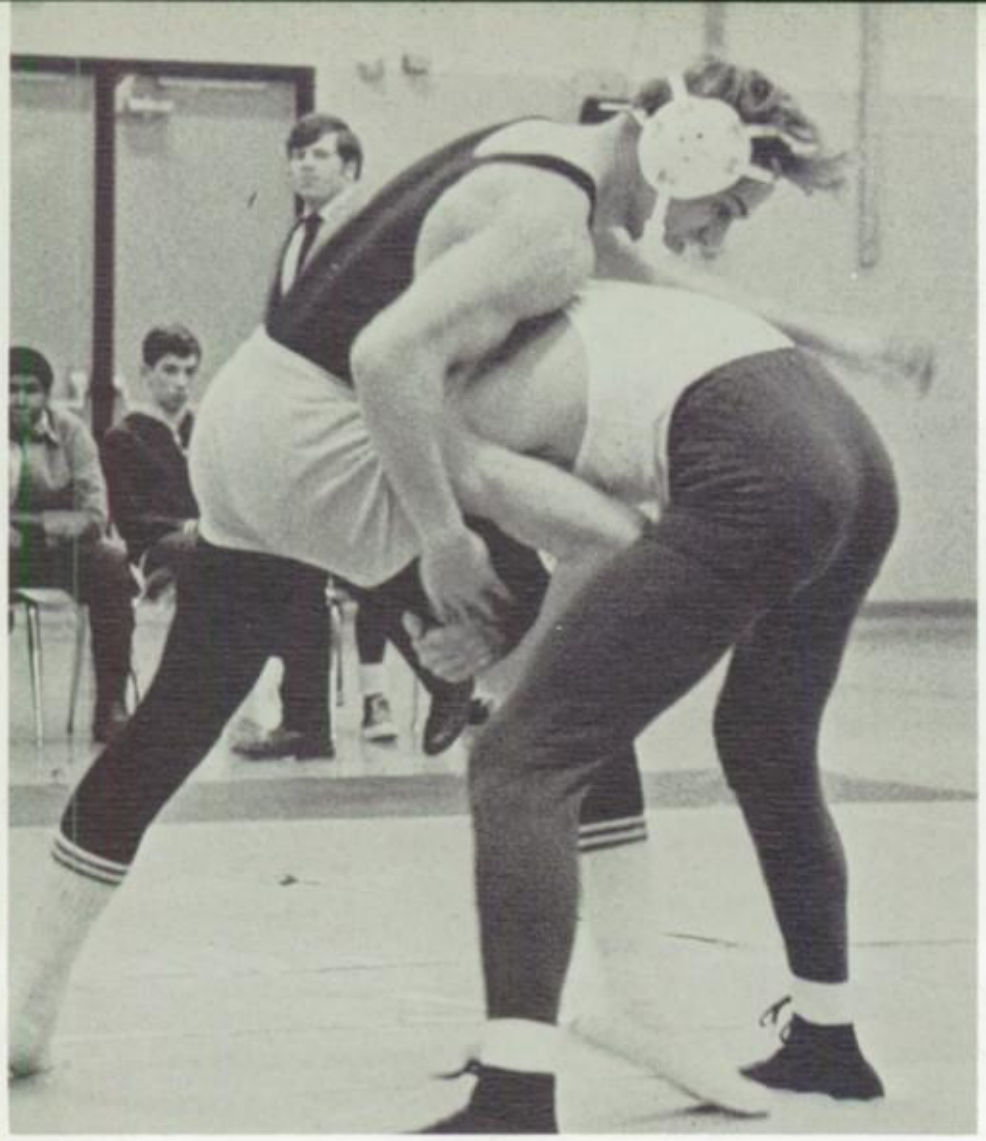


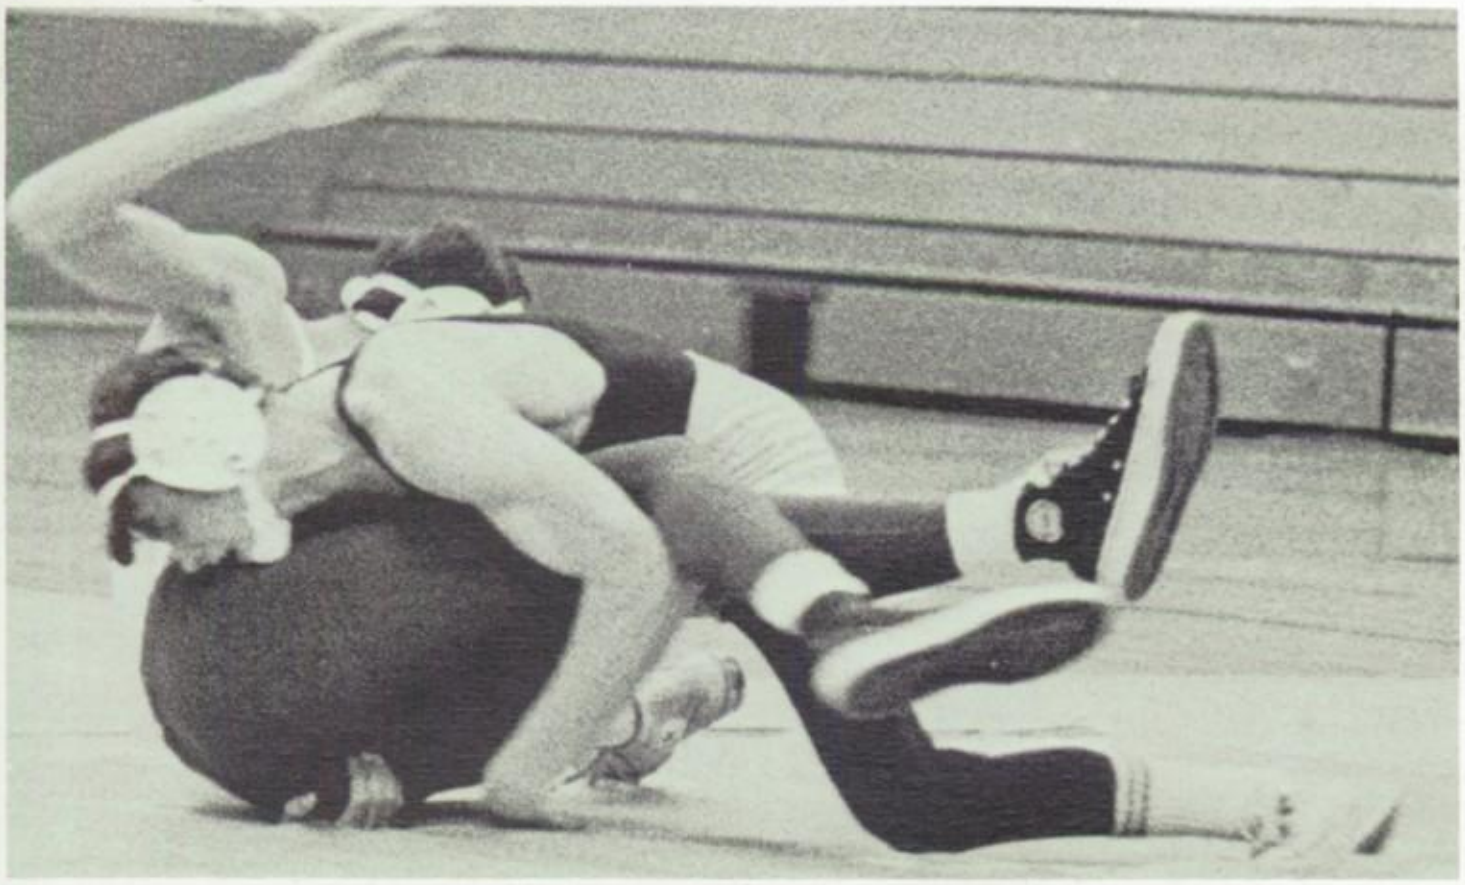
WRESTLING









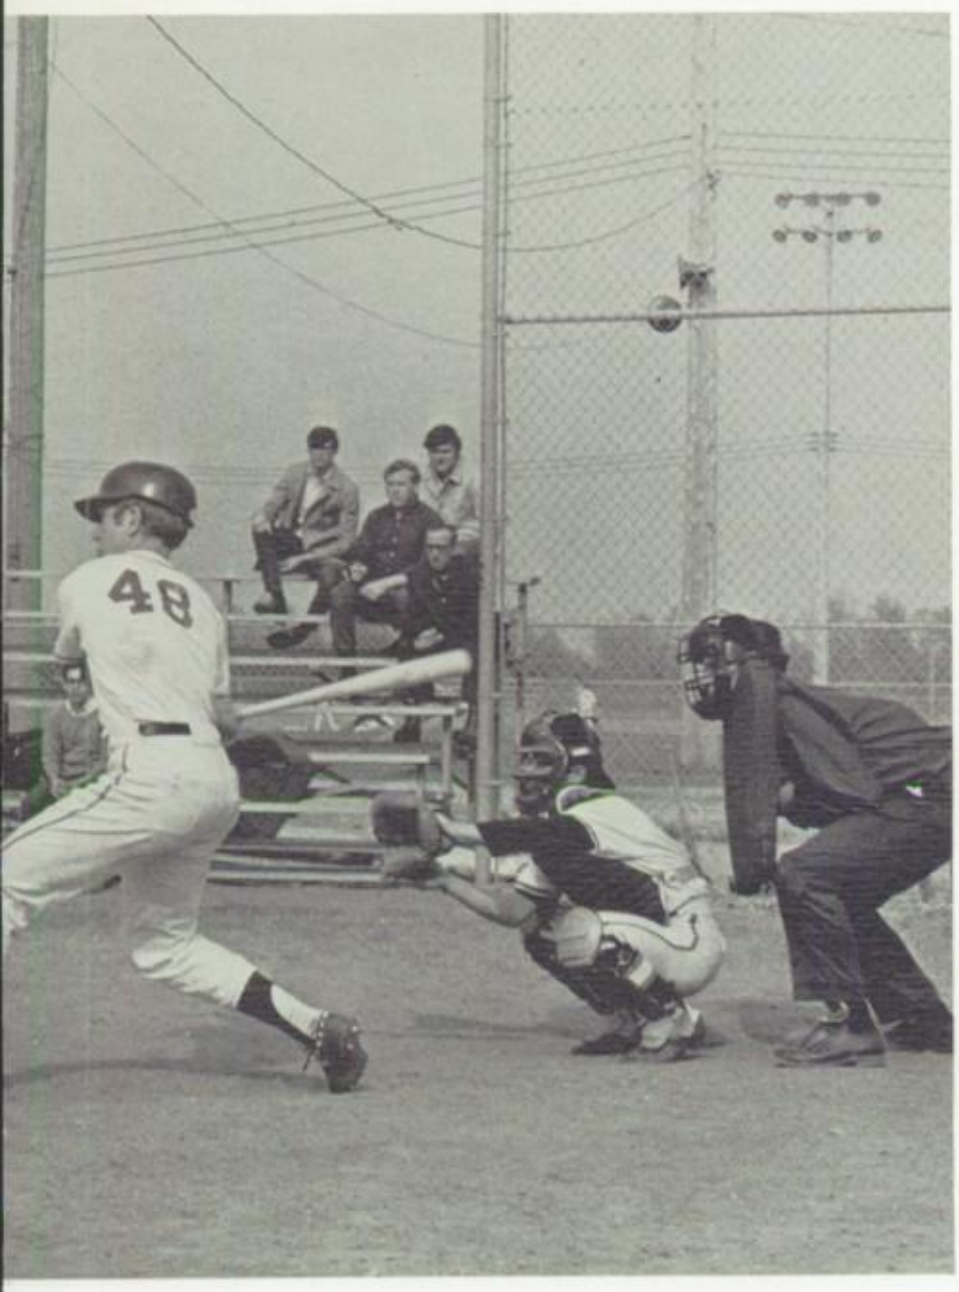


Changes . . . from a non-existent field of endeavor to a pulsating reality, from a past filled with doubt and speculation to a living hope for the future. Under the guidance of Howard Major, Ida's first real wrestling team takes shape and becomes an integral part of normal school life. Met with enthusiastic success, the new wrestling team remains as a constant reminder that, even in the constant world of sports, there are always changes . . .

TRACK

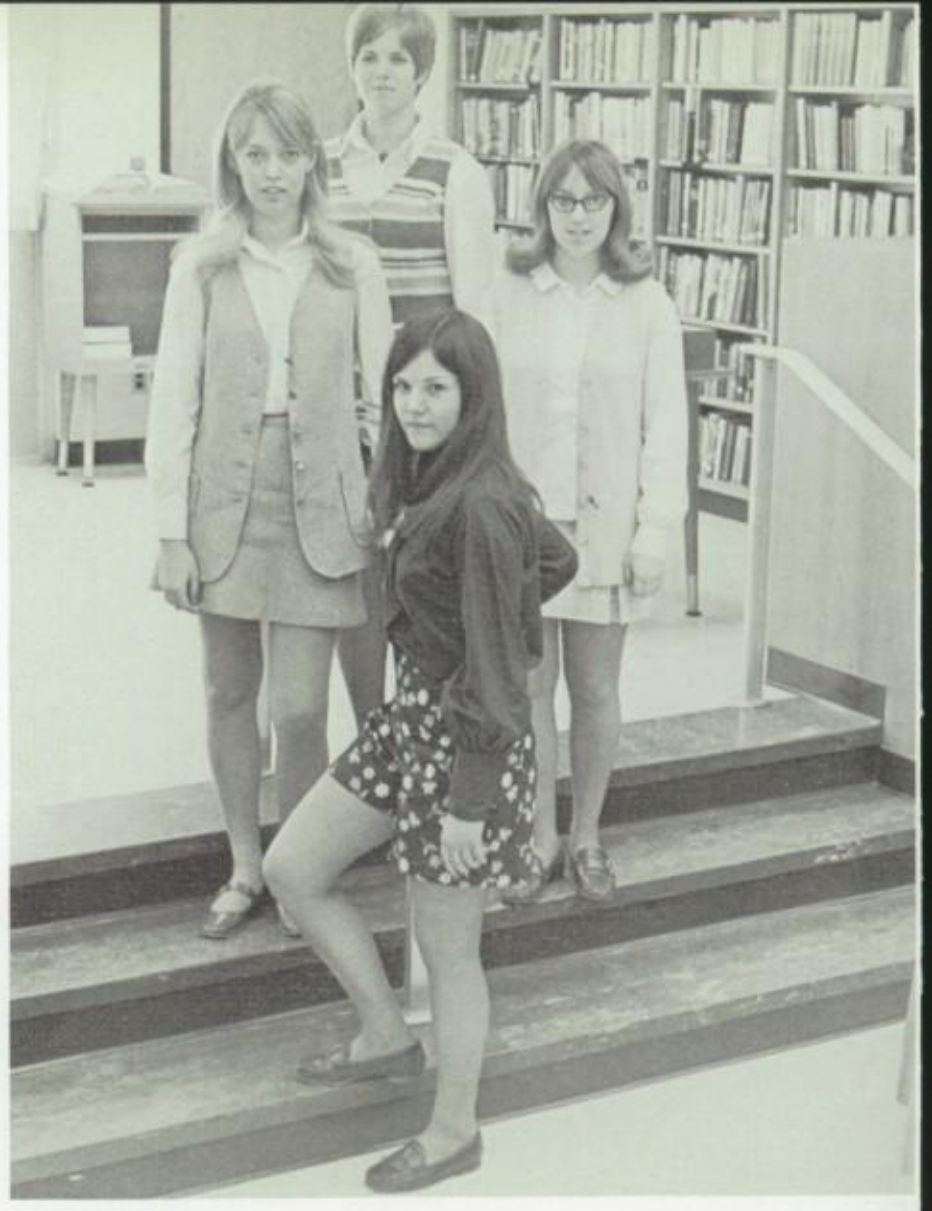
Changes . . . from the smothering confines of practice in school halls to the wide open exhilaration of outdoor performances, from the pounding pain of muscles straining to close that last barren stretch of ground to the happy ache of victorious achievement. Effort and fortitude alike are poured out in abundance and once again a River Raisin Conference title is claimed . . .

BASEBALL



Changes . . . from the disappointed repetion of rained out games to the speeding beauty of a white missile in motion, from the dull monotony of the average school day to the dusty excitement of a run around the bases, from the crowd to the players. Spring arrives and with it the baseball season. The spectators just get into the groove of attending games when the weather gets hot and summer is here . . .

MISS IDA



COURT—Barb Walentowski, Junior; Fay Bradford, Senior; Elaine Kolakowski, Junior; Diane Sedlar, Queen.

Changes . . . . from the familiar confines of the cafeteria, filled with familiar faces to the wide open spaces of the county fairgrounds, from the scratchy sounds of a nondescript stereo to the echoes of several bands vibrating off an old grandstand, from a mass of paper ballots to an assembly of unknown spectators. A convertible pulls up and our queen steps into the cold night air as the early evening sky shades into tints of deepest autumn blue . . . the moment flashes by and is gone . . . .

QUEEN—Diane Seldar

ANNUAL QUEEN

Changes—from an empty gymnasium to a whirling collage of vibrant crepe trapestries and wrought iron thrones, from the same dull dance to an exciting series of innovations in the making of a greatly anticipated event, from a forgetable string of preceeding celebrations to one shinning remembrance, colored with laughter, tears, and relief. Members of the Yearbook staff transform the junior high gym into a pulsating spectrum of colors called Scarborough Fair. Three thrones recline on an island of risers and rainbow streamers. The sounds of celebration bounce off ceiling and walls. The moment is a brightly painted balloon that quietly slips away drifting over the horizon and out of reach . . .

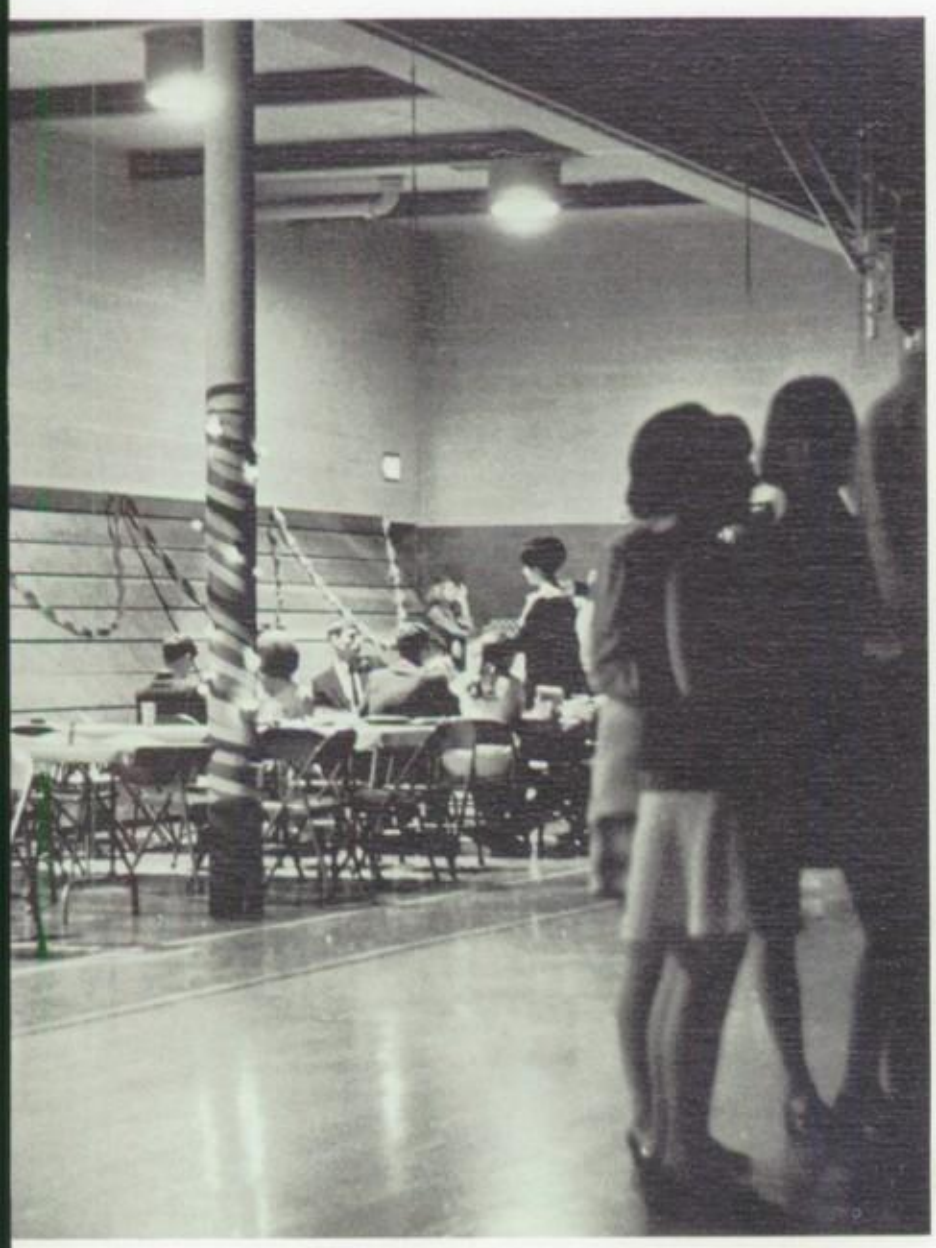
QUEEN—Gail Montri, King—Larry Oberski

FFA SWEETHEART

Changes . . . from the traditional to a new mode of celebration, from the old appearances of a decade of F.F.A. dances to the ultra-modern look of the Seventies, from a heap of forgotten impressions to the unusual happenings that catch on a twig of the mind and stick there. The intermediate gymnasium becomes an expanse of untraversed territory, bathed in light and color. The pleasures of the occasion exist, waiting only for the adventures to reach out and take hold. At last, the entertainment of the evening is gone, leaving only a crown, a memory, and a smile . . .

COURT—Denise Iott, Doug Stotz, Sophomores; Carolyn Rayan, Chuck Metz, Freshman; Bob Trowbridge, Karen Stotz, 1969 FFA Sweethearts; Marcia Kamprath, Lynn Weeman, Senior.



SENIOR PLAY

Soon after school opened, our industrious seniors started the search for a comedy. Their goal was reached in Arsenic and Old Lace. Tryouts were soon over, the parts were cast, and the real work began. Finally, on November 14, the long awaited moment had come—curtain time. As they swung into action, we observed that their comedy was the tale of two charming and innocent ladies who populate their cellar with the remains of socially and religiously "acceptable" roomers. The antics of their nephew, Teddy, who thinks he is Teddy Roosevelt, and the evil plans being laid by Jonathan, a nephew who closely resembles Frankenstein's monster, served only to complicate the mystery. In the middle of the confusion stood the old Ladies' third nephew, Mortimer, a clean-cut lad who wishes peace and quiet and a quick wedding with the girl-next-door.

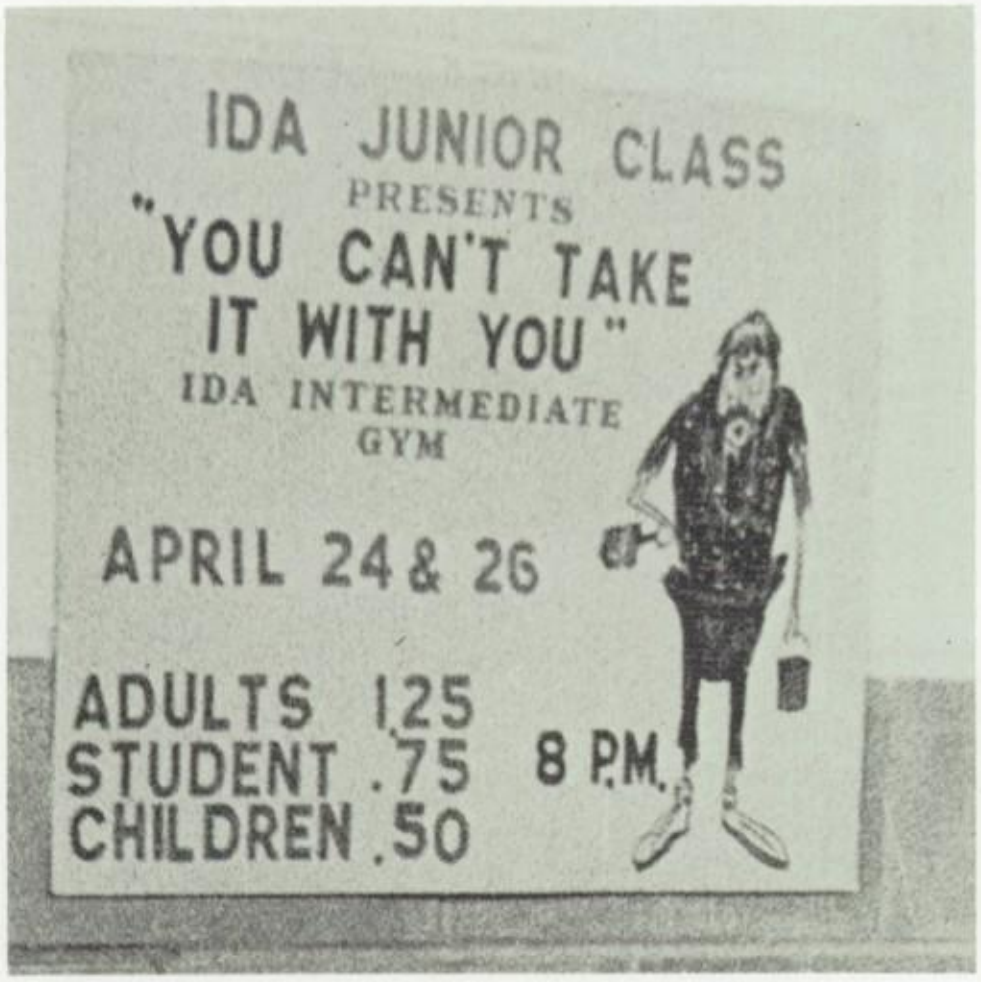
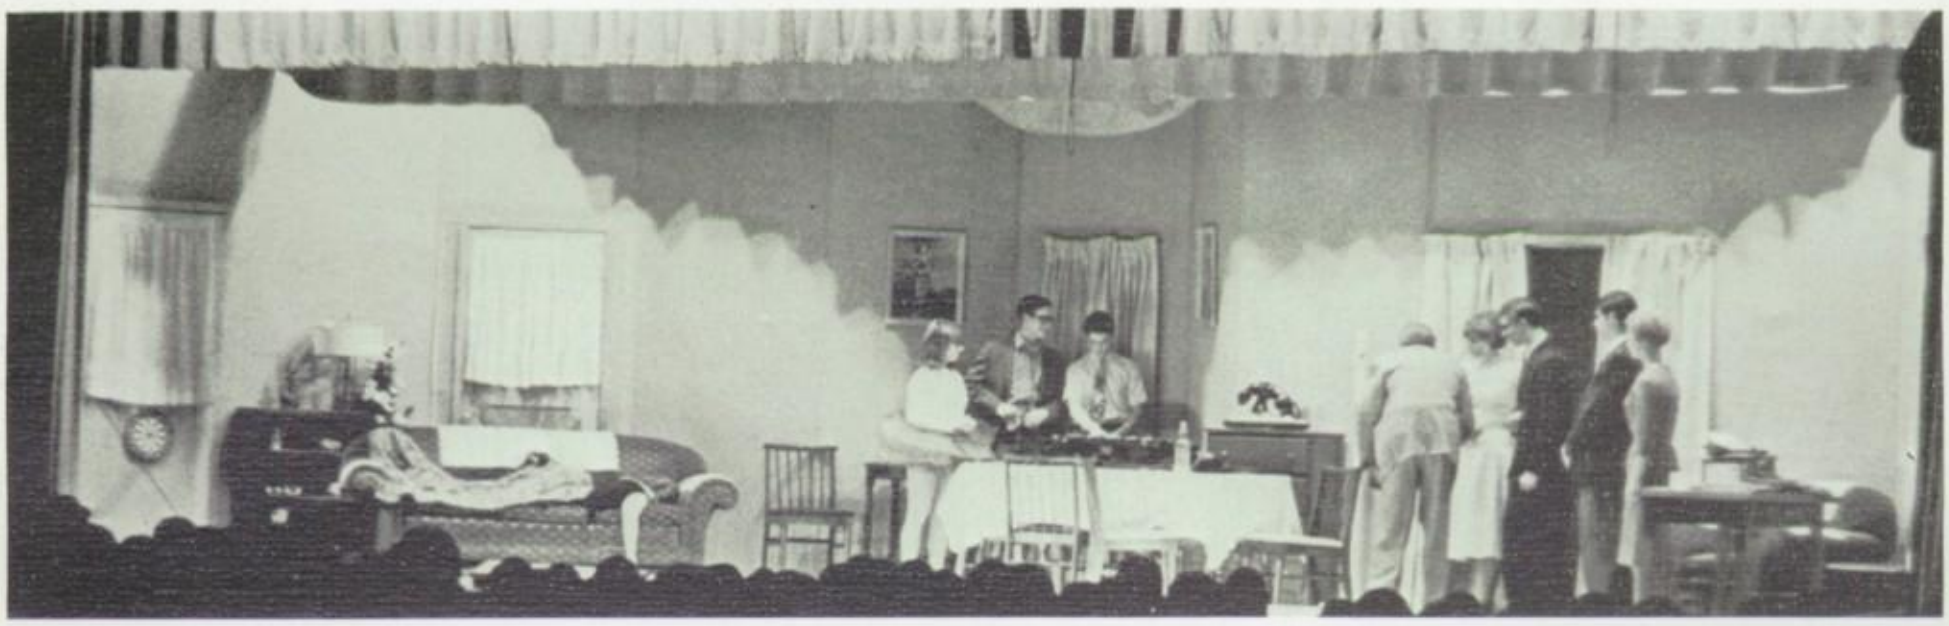
JUNIOR PLAY





Changes . . . from the shaky aloneness of a bare stage to the colorful exhileration of old furniture and newly decorated walls, from practices in jeans to performances in musty costumes, from stammers and giggles to a series of smoothly flowing lines. Insecurity turns to contented confidence as the Class of '71 presents "You Can't Take It With You." April 24 and 26 mark the culmination of hard work and much determination. Inexperience gives way to perfected techniques in stage production, make-up application, costuming, and delivery of dialog. The house lights go down, the Depression years return, and the story of the Vanderhof family unfolds. The work has just turned to enjoyable pleasure when the last applause dies away and the final curtain falls . . .

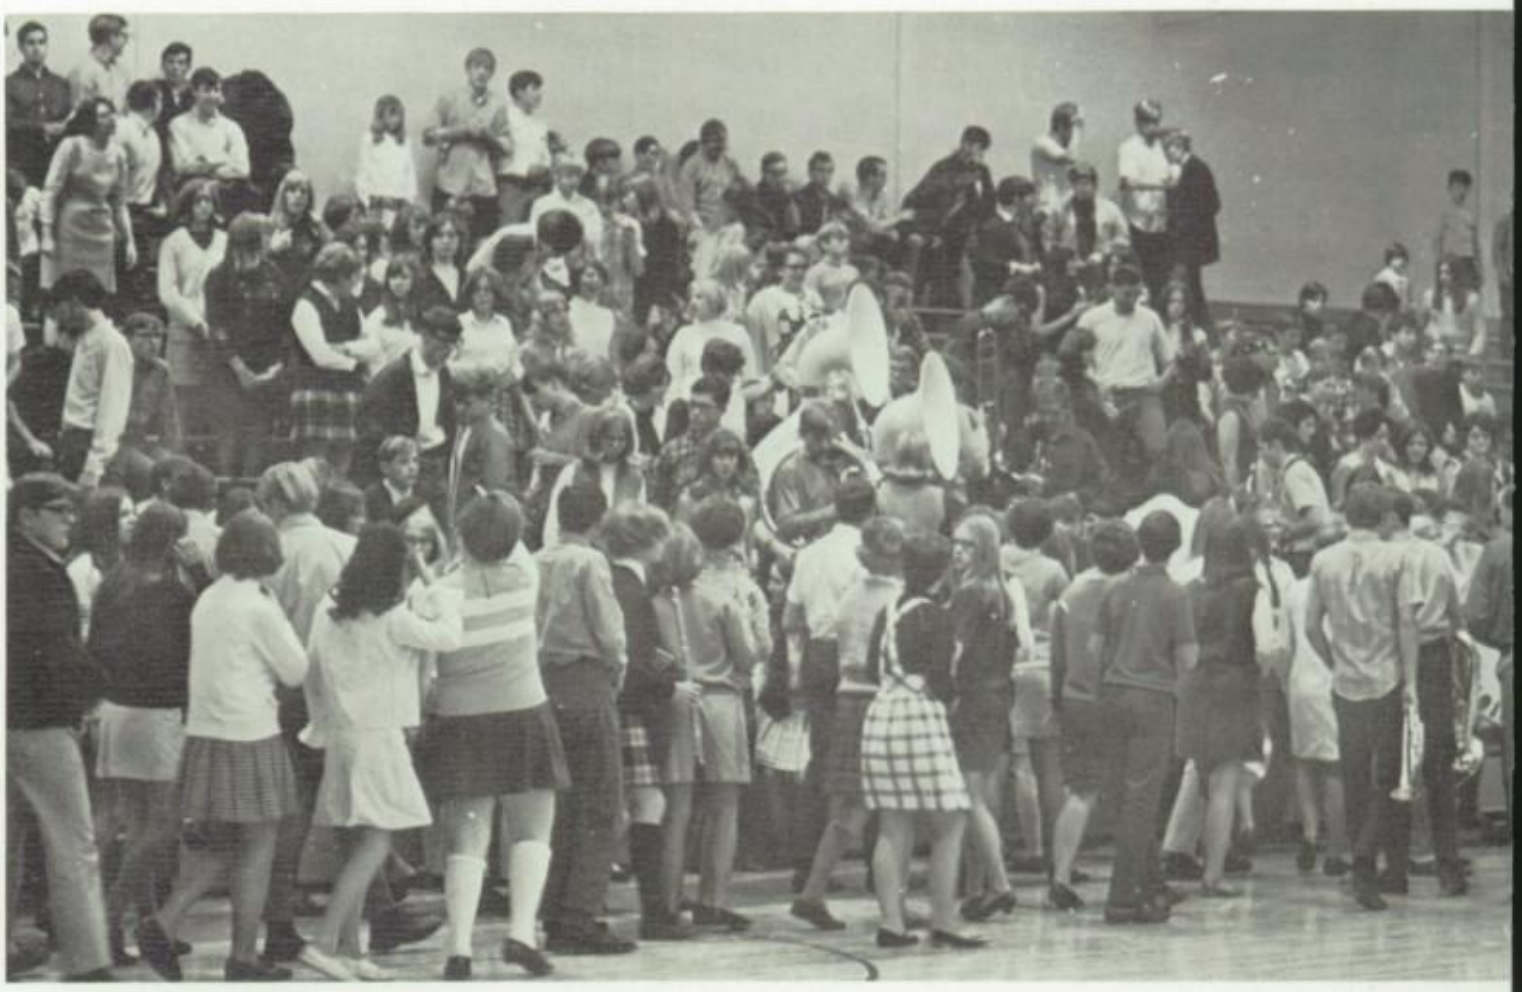
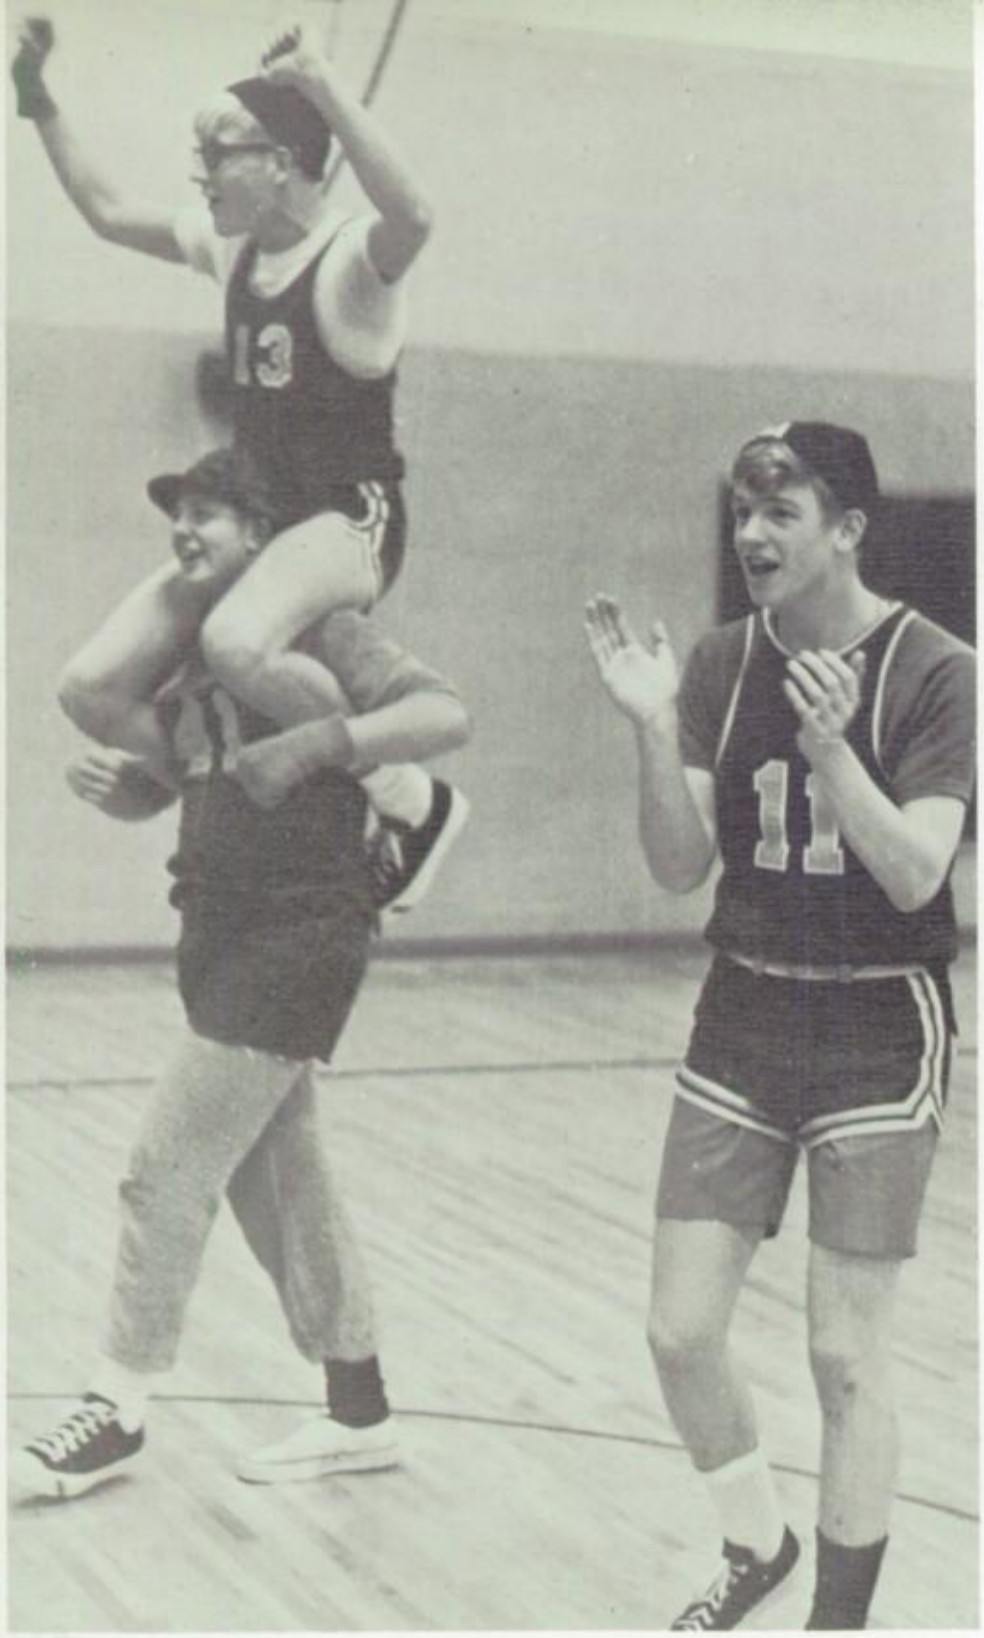
PEP RALLIES

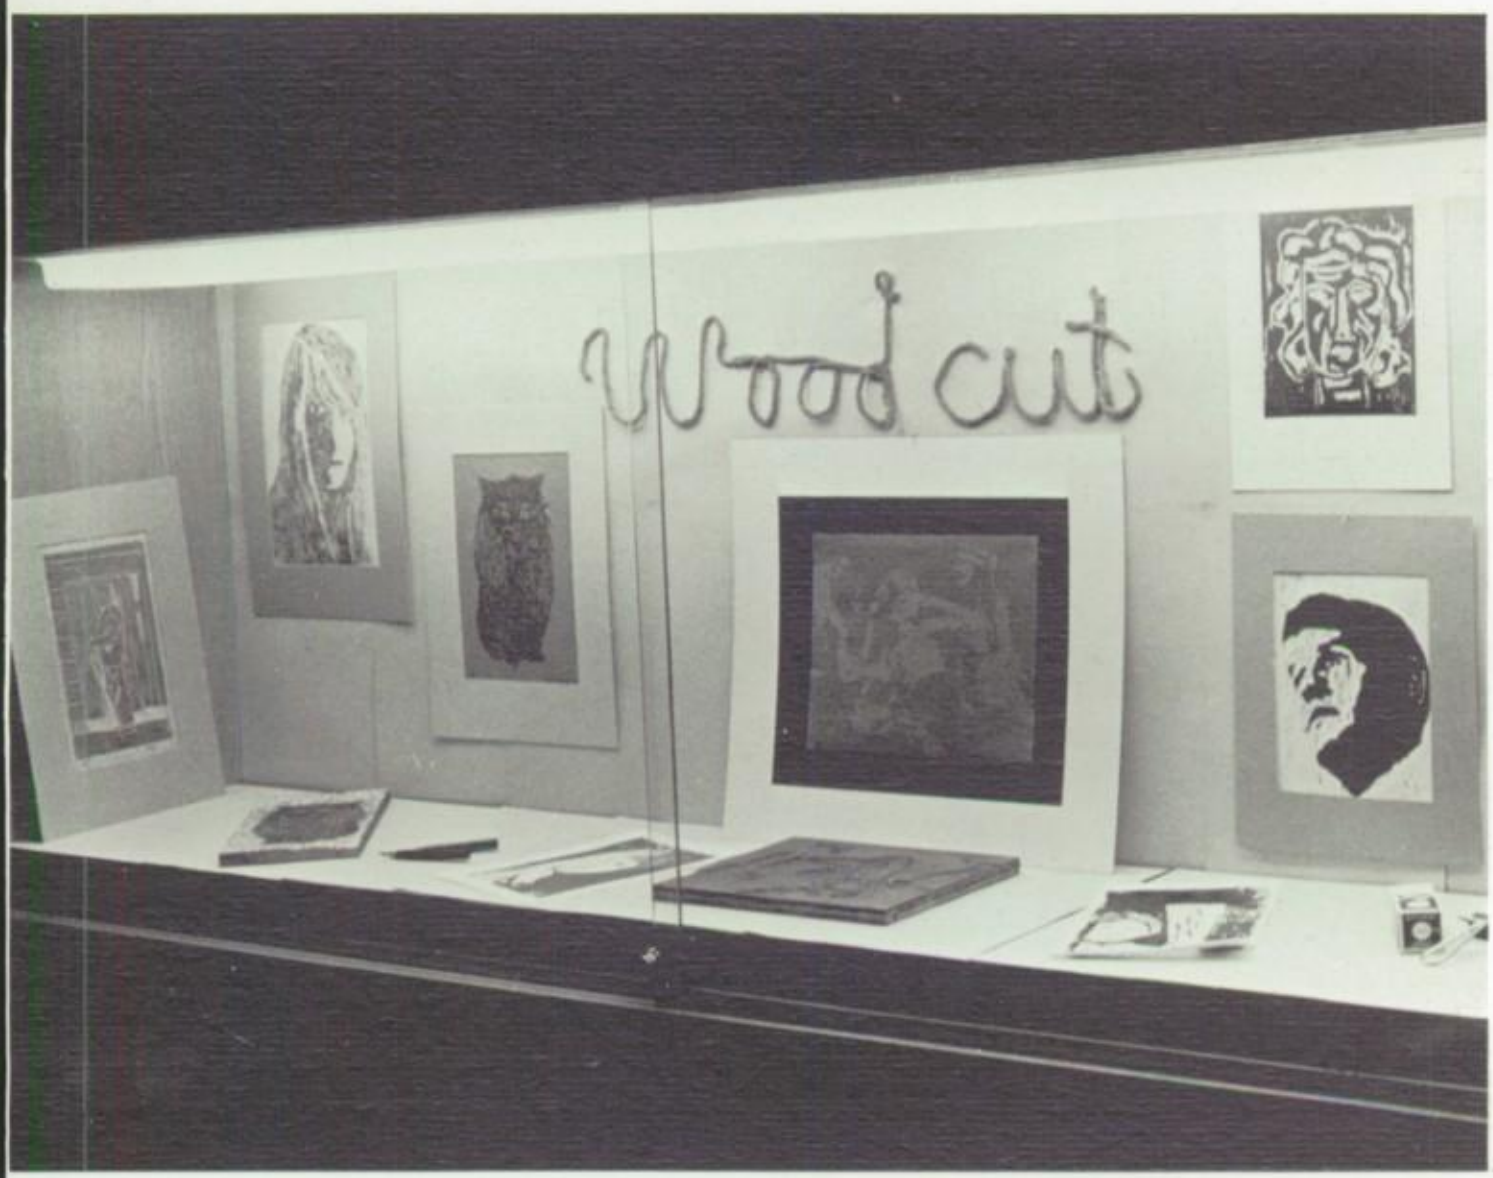




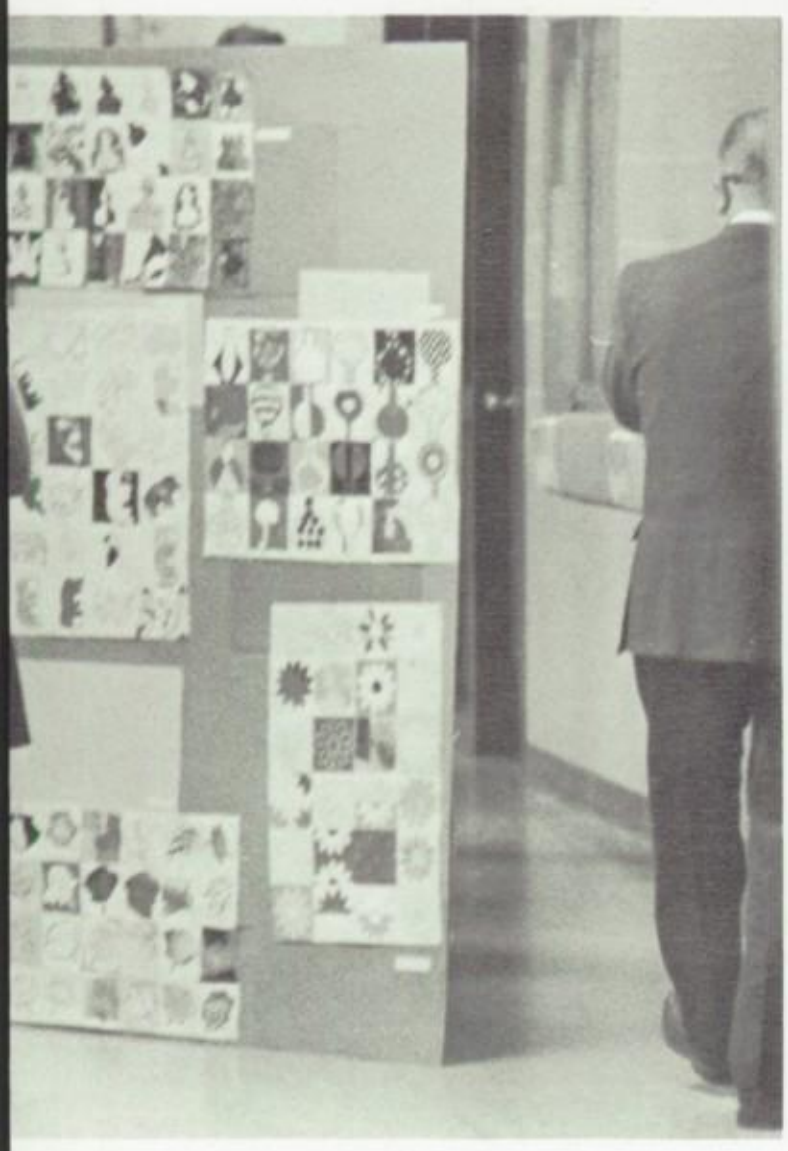
Ask our team what one single factor attributed most to their success. You'll get back the booming answer "SPIRIT". Our cheerleaders are responsible for invoking that spirit and they do an excellent job. In the afternoon before a big game, pep assemblies are held. The band's music and our cheering tell our team we are behind them completely. Occasionally, skits are performed to increase game-winning spirit. At the games, the same spirit of conquest prevails. The cheerleaders and students are there cheering our team on to victory. The good vibrations generated at the pep rallies carried our athletes forward to league championships in football and basketball, on waves of enthusiastic cheers and banners of blue and gold.

FASHION-ART SHOW

Changes . . . from unrelated folds of cotton and wool to a creation worthy of a schoolwide fashion show, from a pile of sheet music and corny skits to an entertaining variety show, from a messy palette to watercolor to a featured painting at the art show, from the separate elements to the finished whole. Activities complete the cycle that draws rapidly to an end.



Wood cuts



PROM

Changes—from an empty ballroom to an electrified atmosphere of spinning planets and zodical houses, from a cold banquet hall to an experience of color and sound, from the tension of preparation to the casual relaxation of recreation. The Junior-Senior Banquet and Prom takes place on May 23rd and the Age of Aquarius is ushered in with great style. The extravagant preparations give way to simple enjoyment and, as a sleepy-eyed group of celebrators finally wend their way homeward, they realize that another day is gone forever. Yet, secure in the fact that they have lived at least this day to the fullest, they find the destination of home and rest an agreeable one . . . . .

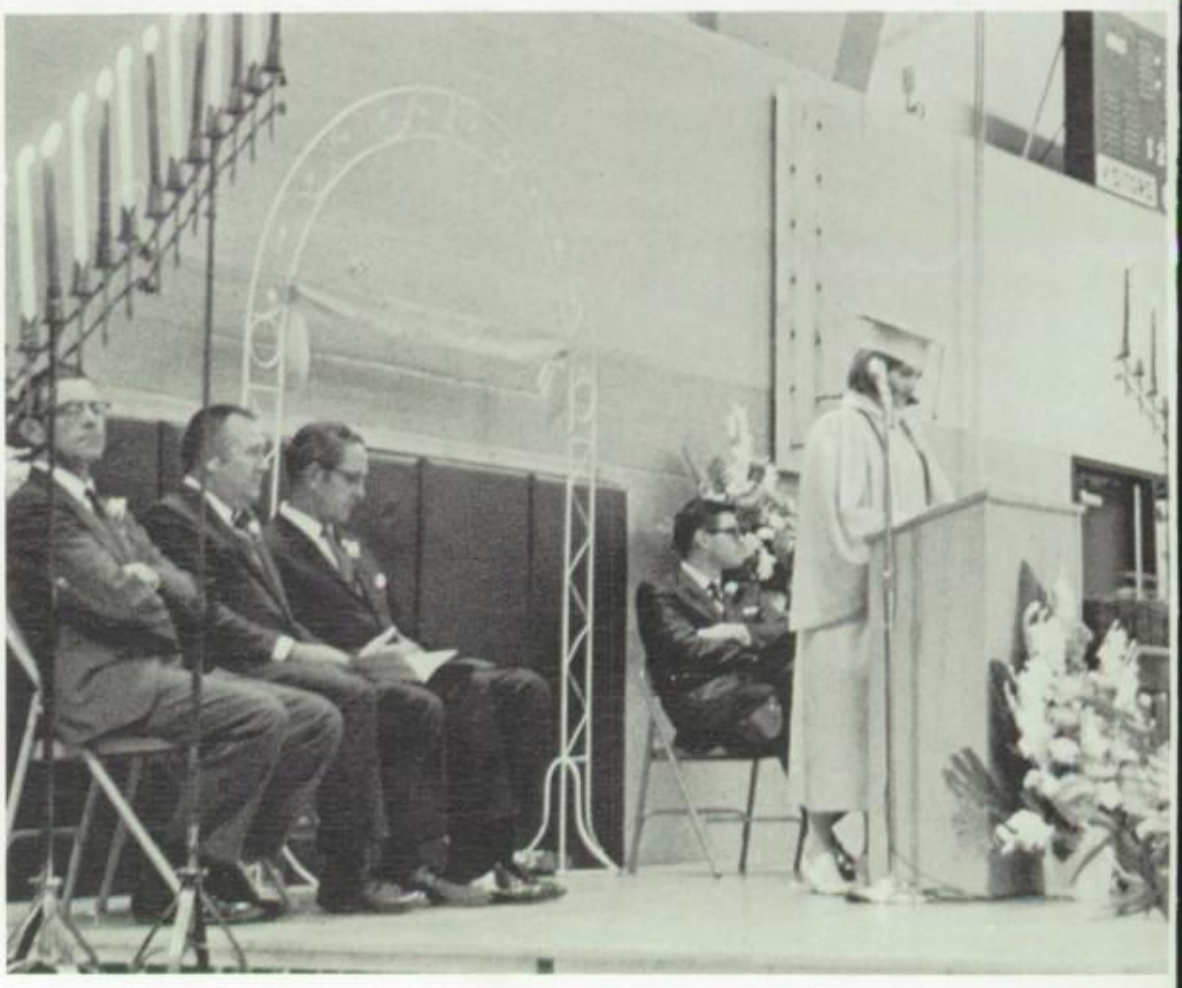
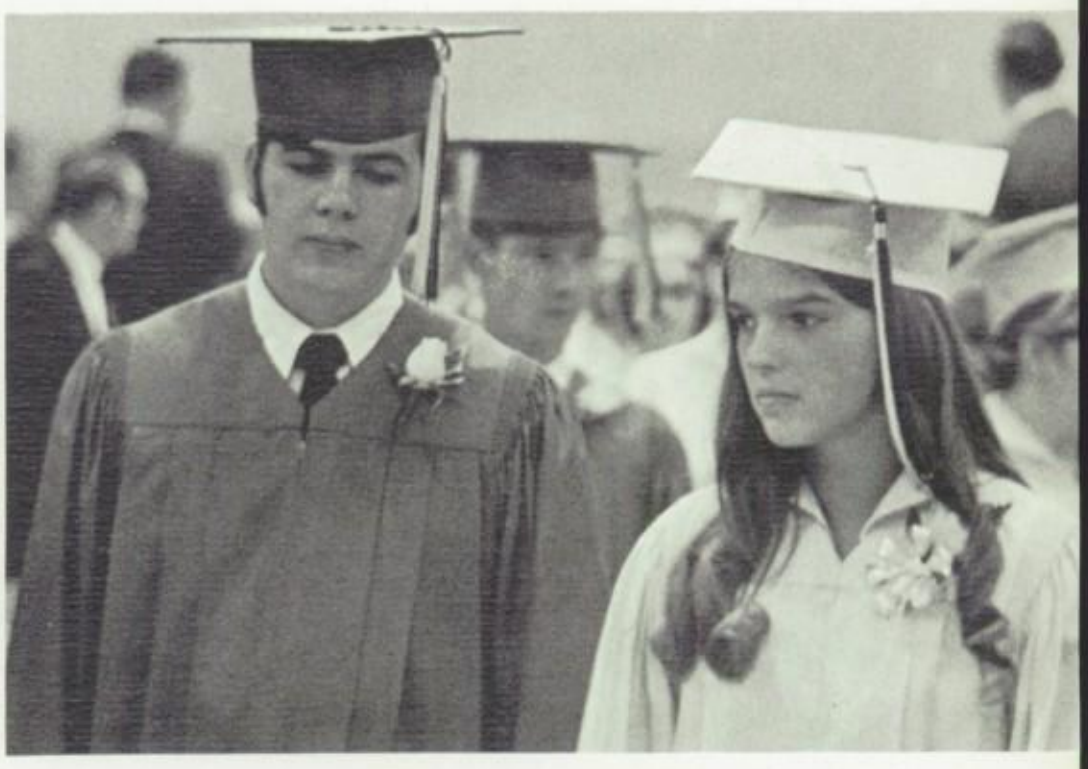
GRADUATION





Changes—From the crowded atmosphere of school activities and school friends to a lonely world that seems, at the moment, to be populated by only one, from the excitement and expected relief of actually receiving a diploma to the dull thud of terror—terror of the outside world, terror of self, terror of walking across that stage, from the warm security of being a member of Ida High School to the cold desperateness of being on the outside looking in and realizing that a return to a former state of being is absurd and impossible, from a wavering smile to a cascade of tears. The very last moment of one hundred sixteen high school careers arrives and the graduates find it terribly hard to let go of the only life they have known. Then, suddenly, the tassels are turned, the class rings are switched, and "congratulations" seems to be the universal form of greeting. The walk back is a long one and only now do the graduates realize that they have grasped a whirlwind piece of life and ridden it out for all it was worth. They realize, too, that only now can they say with pride: "1970—This was the year!" Graduation is gone as rapidly as it sneaked up on one hundred sixteen unsuspecting young men and women. Their high school lives end and so, too, here ends the story of those lives . . . . .

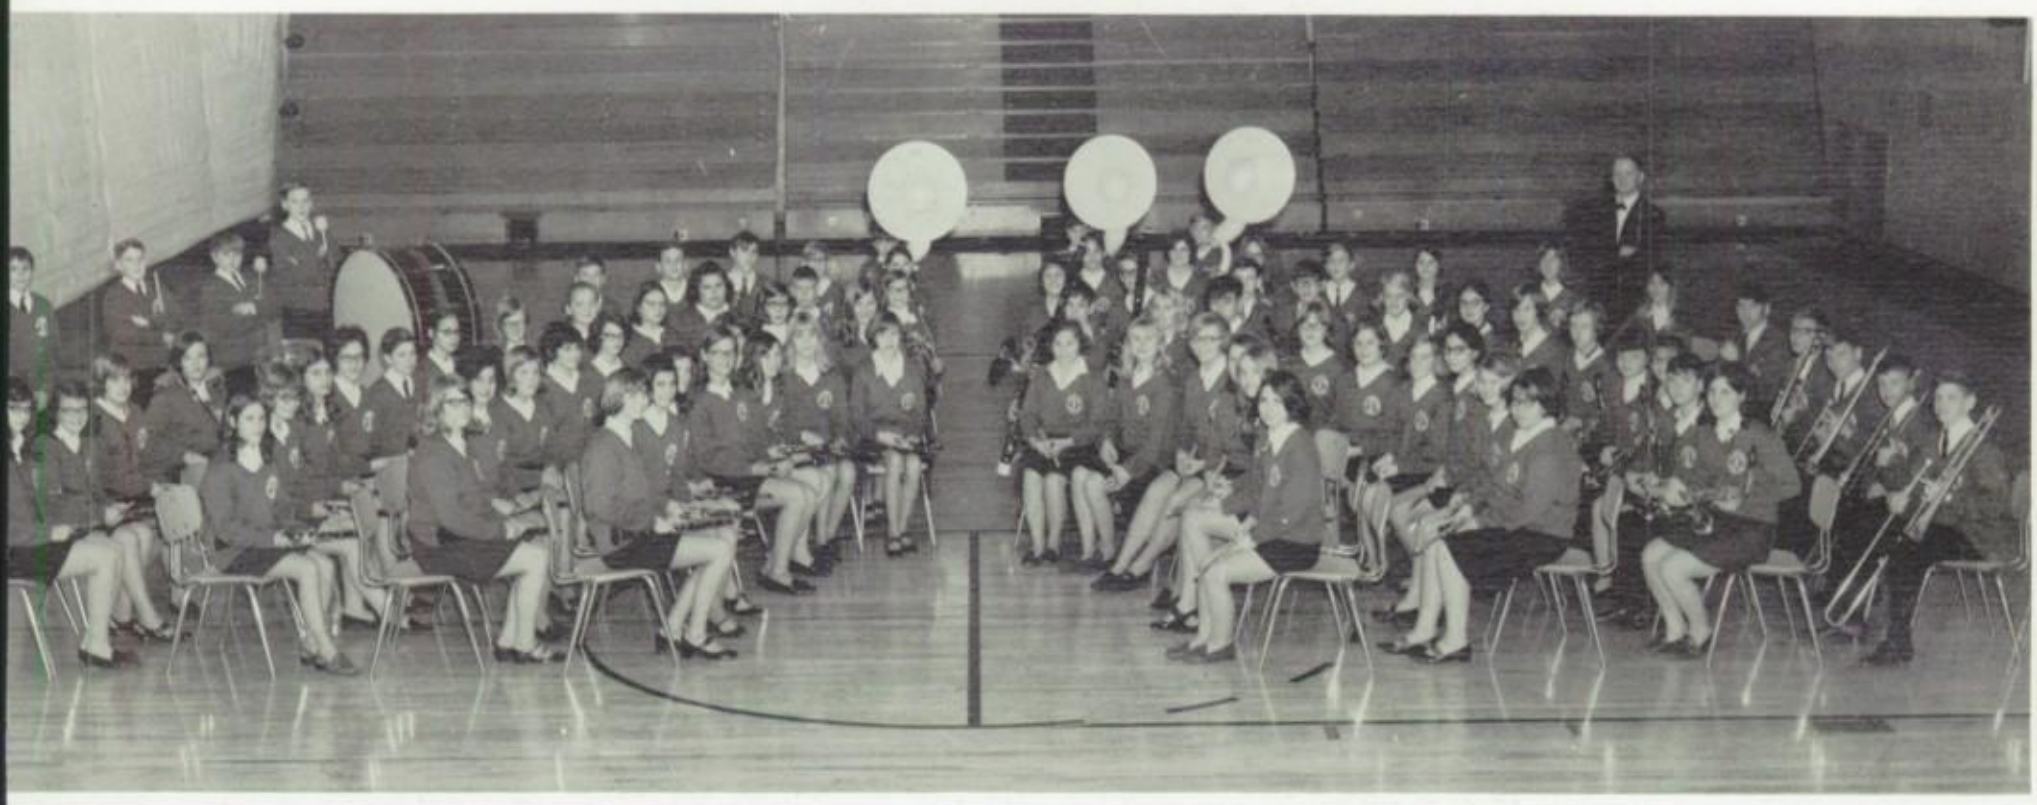
JUNIOR HIGH BAND



This is our Future Sr. Band and prospects have it that they will be just as great and successful as our present one. The Jr. High Band, which prepares the young musicians for Senior Band has had a very fulfilling year marching in parades and during the half-time of one football game; performing at spring, summer and winter concerts; and attending district and state contests.

CADET BAND

The Cadet Band which is composed of sixth and seventh grade students, is a training band that prepares the students for Junior Band. They must attain a certain musical achievement before entering Junior Band. The Cadet Band performed in two concerts and several assemblies for the student body.

The Streaksations is a singing group made up of students in grades ten through twelve. Any student can audition for the group and from these people fourteen are selected. Practice is held before school on Tuesday and Friday. The Streaksations performed for civic organizations, the Christmas program, the Variety Show, and the Caberet.

The High School Choir provides a place and opportunity for singers to combine their talent and interests into a group. They meet daily with their director, Mr. Miller, for a regular class period. The choir activities this year included a Christmas program and Spring Concert.

JUNIOR HIGH GIRLS' CHORUS

D. Gotha, piano player; Mr. Miller, director

SIXTH GRADE CHORUS

D. Myburg, paino player; Mr. Miller, director

This sixth grade chorus promotes the enjoyment and rewards of group singing. It also gives them the needed experience to become a member of the Jr. High Girl's Chorus. This chorus further promotes and enriches the singing background of the student. Both of these choruses help the students to develop an appreciation for the art of music. They have shown their talents at various concerts and assemblies.

The purpose of the Student Council is to create united harmony between students and teachers and to promote better understanding between students and parents. The Student Council also tries to promote school spirit and insure better relationships between classes. The Student Council consists of five representatives from each grade. The class presidents and secretaries are also allowed to attend the meetings to inform the Council of class activities and to relay information from the Council to the classes. Student Council activities this year have been the Homecoming Parade, the March of Dimes Bread Drive, and the annual magazine drive. They also plan assemblies and sell candy at noon hour. The Council has purchased equipment for the wrestling team, obtained Christmas lights for the school, fixed up the grounds around the school, and supplied spray paint for the construction of student posters.

The purpose of the Girl's Basketball is to give girls a chance to compete against other schools in basketball games. It also gives girls a chance to develop athletic skills and to learn to work together as a team. There is both a varsity and reserve team and they each played a ten game schedule this year.

VARSITY CLUB

Row 1—A. Stubleski, T. Sortor—Pres., G. Davis, D. Hodge, D. Clare—Vice Pres. Row 2—Coach Overholser, J. Smith, R. Mann, R. Kolakowski, G. Setlock, D. Zorn. Row 3—T. Leonard—Sec. M. Jobe, M. Skampo, K. Kreger, J. Durbin, T. Firestone—Treas.

The Varsity Club is made up of athletes who have earned a Varsity letter in some sport. Their purpose is to join together in fellowship and support all athletics at Ida High School. They earn money to buy equipment for the sports at Ida.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION CLUB

The purpose of the Physical Education Club is to promote physical fitness and increase interest in tumbling and gymnastics. It also gives students more time for developing skills in the perspective sports provided at Ida. Activities this year included half-time shows at basketball games, an evening show, and an assembly put on for the students.

Leonard, R. Kuckuck, C. Wester, R. Turner, D. Bowman, S. Zimmerman, P. Brueshaber.

The ham in everyone is given a chance to shine through in the Ida High School Drama Club. Acquainting the members with the facts of drama and giving them an opportunity to participate in dramatic experiences is what our dramatic coach is striving for. If acting isn't your thing, maybe writing you own play, directing it, lighting and other back-stage acts are. This year our "stars" demonstrated their talents by performing three one act plays by professional playwrights and an original variety show.

DEBATE CLUB

Row 1—J. Johnson, J. Johnson. Row 2—D. Schlump, T. Leonard, K. Stotz. Row 3—S. Oberski, R. Kleinert, D. Scott, J. Starkey. Row 4—M. Haas, B. Vergiels, T. Firestone, D. Bowman, Mr. Yaekel—Adv.

The Shop Club is comprised of the possible leaders of industry of tomorrow. They take a closer look at industry, its processes and its products. With the guidance of the instructor they work on individual projects in the shop after each meeting is adjourned. In the fall, the Shop Club made minature styrofoam footballs to sell at the games.

The purpose of the Future Farmers of America is to teach citizenship, to prepare young men for jobs in agriculture and business, and to instruct the proper use of parliamentary procedure. The F.F.A. sponsored the Sweetheart Dance and the donkey basketball game. They also have participated in the District Leadership Contest.

Called by duty to prepare the most exciting yearbook in the history of Ida High School, the Yearbook Staff started early on their plan to create this eighth wonder of the world.

The first days of school found the various editors obtaining underclassmen for staff members and the grinding work of compiling a yearbook began. Countless nights were filled with the moans and groans of toiling Yearbook Staffers hard at work. Eye strain and writer's cramp could not deter the laborers from their goal. Giant sales and ad campaigns were launched and students were literally swept off their feet by the money-mad Yearbook Staff. The public address system was mysteriously haunted by Captain Stripe-O and a wolf with a bad laugh. One saw the bleary-eyed staff bent over the unintelligible lay-outs and the various deadlines were ultimately met, proving the old Winston Churchill adage, "Never have so few done so much for so many.

NEWSPAPER CLUB

Row 1—Mrs. Koester—Adv., S. Champine—Ed., G. Champine—Co-Ed., T. Smith—Sec., Mrs. LaVoy—Adv.

The Junior High Pep Club consists of about two hundred sixth, seventh, and eighth graders. The purpose of the club is to foster sportsmanship and school spirit and to support the Junior High Basketball teams.

The "Junior High Journal" is published by the Newspaper Club. The Journal offers information and interesting reading to the Jr. High students and helps provide the club's members with writing experience.

Stimulating an interest in collecting stamps and coins and providing the opportunity for trading or buying from one another are the goals for which this active club is striving. Interest is maintained by lively discussions and vivid displays.

The service of setting up and operating projectors for Jr. High classroom work is provided by the Audio-Visual Club. Their goal this year is to raise money to help purchase a polaroid camera for school use. Showing movies to interested students at noon hour is helping to change this goal from a dream to a reality.

The Junior Future Nurses try to give the members an idea of a nurses life by visiting hospitals, studying about nursing and having nurses in to talk about nursing as a career. The club members plan a tea for their mothers each spring.

The Junior High Basketball Club is open to any student in the Intermediate school who is interested in junior high athletics, either as players or spectators. The objective of this club is to promote better sportsmanship among the players and teams.

1970—The year of CHANGE—We have created this yearbook by the stretching of our minds and the working of our hands. We hope what you have experienced through these pages is more than just a remembrance of sights and sounds but of emotions. Through words and pictures we have tried to depict life at Ida as it really is. Therefore, we dedicate this biography to you, the students of Ida Jr. High and High School. 1970—This is the year!!
